UNO COUNCIL BRACED FOR NEW SOVIET MOVES

Questions Concerning Greece
And Indonesia May Come
Up At Meeting

NEW YORK, April 2—United Nations security council members braced themselves today for possible Soviet retaliation against the United States and Great Britain—leading prosecutors of Iran's case against Russia.

At 11 a. m. EST, only 24 hours remained before the next council meeting. The opening of that meeting tomorrow is the deadline for both Iran and Russia to reply to the council's request for clarification of their dispute.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will return to New York late today to resume direction of the U. S. delegation in the Iranian case. He is ready to press council consideration of Iran's charges in detail if the Russians do not reply or get out of Iran.

There are a number of other difficult political issues the Soviet Union could bring before the council—as it did in London—if it wishes.

Fireworks Seen
Some diplomats connected with the council would be surprised if the Soviet Union accepts the UNO "formula" set up for disposal of the Iranian case without coupling its reply with charges against Britain and possibly the United States which might overshadow the Iranian issue.

In London where the Iranians brought their first case against Russia to the council, the Soviet Union and Soviet Ukraine snapped back immediately with charges against British policy in Indonesia and Greece. The Russians still think that the British urged the Iranians to make those original charges and are extremely bitter about the leading role Byrnes has played in the Iranian case here.

List Issues
Issues the Russians are most likely to raise include:
Greece—Where Soviet-favored leftist forces were soundly defeated in Sunday's election by the Royalist-Populist group. Both American and British troops were in Greece acting as "observers" during Sunday's election.

Indonesia—Where a Dutch-Indonesian settlement has not been reached but is reported near.

Iceland—Where American troops are still quartered more than six months after the end of the Japanese war. Dispatches in Scandinavian papers report that Iceland has sent a note to the U. S. asking it to remove its troops.

Cuba—Where the U. S. plans on May 20 to turn over its war-time built bases to the Cuban government but to retain Guantanamo. Cuban Communist papers and the Moscow radio have been citing this as a case of American troops in another sovereign nation.

More Trouble Feared
In addition there is always the possibility Russia may toss Spain and Argentina into the council.

Morality Is Urged By MacArthur

General Asks Soldiers To Watch Relations With Japanese Women

TOKYO, April 2—General Douglas MacArthur today called on U. S. troops in Japan to observe a "high standard of morality" in their relations with Japanese women to avoid sorrow and distress in their American homes.

Commenting on letters received from America, MacArthur said "grave concern" was being expressed over published reports which suggested "widespread" promiscuity among GIs and Japanese girls.

"Unfortunately," he said in a letter to Army chaplains, "there has been a growing tendency to misconstrue the word 'fraternization'—to clothe it with the sole meaning of immorality—and greatly over-emphasize and misinterpret the relationship between members of the American occupying forces and the Japanese people."

"This results," he continued, "from the prominence of the American uniform in Japan—a prominence which causes one mis-

WHEAT MOVING PLAN STUDIED

U. S. Farmers May Be Given
Certificates To Get Food On Its Way

WASHINGTON, April 2—The government was putting finishing touches today on a new program to pry loose critically-needed wheat from farm storage bins and start it on its way to hunger areas overseas.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson indicated that he would have an official announcement on the program later this week. It was believed the plan would call for the government to give farmers non-interest bearing certificates for their wheat.

These certificates could be cashed any time between now and next March 31 for whatever price wheat might be bringing at that time. This would give farmers the advantage of any rise in prices after they turned their wheat over to the government.

It was estimated, for instance, that wheat prices might soar as much as 50 cents a bushel should congress approve the Pace bill. That measure would require the government to figure farm labor costs in computing farm support

Impossible Collision Of Two Submarines Revealed

PEARL HARBOR, April 2—Navy officials disclosed today the "it-couldn't-happen" story of two submarines colliding in the Pacific during the war in a freak accident involving odds of 119,594,745,000 to one.

The collision occurred on Feb. 23, 1945, when the U. S. S. Flounder was rammed by the bow of the U. S. S. Hoe off French Indo-China in the South China sea. Both submarines were cruising at periscope depth.

Navy mathematicians, after extensive calculations, said it was "virtually impossible" for two submarines, each 300 by 27 feet, and each equipped with ultra-modern safety and detection devices, ramming in an ocean with 68,634,000 square miles of surface.

However, Cmdr. J. E. Stevens, Flushing, N. Y., and Lt. Cmdr. M. P. Reff III, Belmont, Mass., commanding officers of the Flounder and Hoe respectively, said

PREFERS ARMY TO COAL STRIKE

JOHN KONDRACH, left, 32-year-old Martins Ferry, O., miner and father of six children, is congratulated by Staff Sgt. Robert Thorn of the Wheeling, W. Va., recruiting office after Kondrach enlisted in the Army because he was afraid he wouldn't be able to support his family during the coal strike. His Army pay, including allotments, will be $208 a month. He was deferred from military service during the war.

New Army Reserve Corps Will Train This Summer

WASHINGTON, April 2—The Army announced today that its new streamlined volunteer reserve corps will take the field this summer for its first postwar training program.

The reserve eventually will be about six times as large as that set up after World War I. It will be organized to back up the regular army swiftly in case of national emergency.

It will be divided into three categories. The first will include units maintained at full wartime strength and supplied with all the basic equipment necessary for instant mobilization.

Other groups will have a full wartime complement of officers and all necessary equipment but only a skeleton force of enlisted men. The third category will include officers only.

The war department estimated that approximately 225,000 officers and men or about six times as many as in 1920 when there were 107,083 officers and men in the reserve corps. This will

ARMY PRIVATE HAILED AS HERO

Soldier Who Flew From U. S.
To See Dying Son Rescues
Teacher And Children

HILO, Hawaii, April 2—An Army private who flew 5,000 miles from Fort Benning, Ga., in order to be with the dying infant son he had never seen was acclaimed a hero today after the rescue of a school teacher and two children who had been washed into the sea by a tidal wave.

Army authorities said Pfc. Francis M. Malani, accompanied by two other men and a boy, commandeered a small outboard motorboat and braved rough seas to rescue the teacher and her pupils who had been clinging to a makeshift raft more than nine hours.

Dr. Libert Fernandez, another unidentified man and a boy named Masau, made the perilous rescue trip of nearly two miles.

The teacher was identified only as a "Miss McGuiness." The children's names could not be learned immediately. Their condition was not known.

COURTESY CALLS TO BE MADE BY AMERICAN SHIPS

ABOARD BATTLESHIP MISSOURI IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, April 2—Adm. H. K. Hewitt, commander of U. S. naval forces in Europe, disclosed today that the Navy had worked out an ambitious program which would take American warships on courtesy calls to several overseas countries.

The Missouri herself will make six goodwill visits in the Mediterranean area this month, Hewitt said, while the cruiser Providence will make two others. During the late spring other fleet units will visit Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and The Netherlands.

'STALLING' IS CHARGED BY MINERS, OWNERS

No Progress Is Reported In Coal Dispute; Meatmen
Threaten New Strike

By United Press
More than 800,000 U. S. workers were idle today in strikes and shutdowns. A mine workers' strike closed the nation's soft coal mines and public transportation in two cities was at a standstill.

In the coal dispute, negotiations between United Mine Workers' (AFL) President John L. Lewis and management representatives ended without progress. Each side accused the other of "stalling" tactics.

The parties will meet again today, however, to continue their attempts to settle the dispute over safety regulations and health benefits which sent 400,000 miners out of the pits at midnight Sunday and halted output of fuel vitally needed by the nation's industries and railroads.

Many Still Walking

Other major developments:
1. More than 2,000,000 residents of Akron, O., and Detroit continued to rely on private transportation as efforts to end transit strikes in both cities collapsed.

2. Government conciliators said progress had been made toward settlement of the 72-day-old strike of 30,000 employees in 10 plants of International Harvester company. Negotiations were to be resumed today at Washington.

3. The CIO packinghouse workers warned they might renew their strike to protest layoffs which they claimed had resulted from the industry's refusal to purchase livestock at present prices. The union charged 20,000 workers had been laid off since they returned to their jobs after their recent strike over wages.

Stalemate Reported
4. A negotiation meeting between CIO President Philip Murray and Dwilyn A. Price, president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., ended in a stalemate. The two officials failed to agree on a wage increase that would have ended the 78-day-old strike of the

FARM BUREAU IN FAVOR OF PRICE CEILING SETUP

COLUMBUS, April 2—Members of the Ohio Farm Bureau advisory councils today said they were opposed to any relaxation of price ceilings.

Harry W. Culbreath, organization director of the Ohio Farm Bureau, said farm groups meeting throughout the state in March discussed inflation more than 200 times, with the majority of farmers opposed to release of price controls.

"Farm prices, especially egg prices, are a big worry to the farmer," Culbreath said. "Records show that many farmers believe that since parity prices and restrictions have not been too successful, they would like to give parity income a chance."

Farmers want to be fair about prices, but feel they deserve the same treatment as other groups, he said. He added that "they know if the price line is broken, they stand to suffer from runaway inflation."

25 NEW VEHICLES SOLD HERE DURING LAST MONTH

Total of 596 titles was issued during March in the motor vehicle department of the office of Pickaway County Clerk of Courts Arthur Wilder.

In making this announcement, Tuesday, the clerk of courts said that last month's business included issuance of 37 duplicate titles, making of 152 lien notations, 181 lien cancellations, and sales during March of 16 new automobiles, six new trucks, two jeeps, and one new house trailer.

Election Of Reece As GOP
Chairman Seen As Big Victory For Ohioans

WASHINGTON, April 2—The election of Rep. B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee as Republican national chairman was counted a significant victory today for the Taft-Bricker forces within the GOP.

The soft-spoken, 56-year-old "border state" congressman was named to the party chairmanship late yesterday. He won despite opposition from supporters of Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, the liberal ex-governor of Minnesota who is considered a strong contender for the GOP's 1948 presidential nomination.

Reece generally was regarded as representing the more conservative views of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and former Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, the GOP's 1944 vice presidential nominee.

The new chairman, a veteran of 26 years in congress, said he would resign his seat in the house to devote his full time to the Republic.

FARM STRIKE IS DISCUSSED AT LICKING MEET

HEBRON, April 2—Licking county farmers today discussed a resolution, adopted by the county's unit of the Ohio Marketing Protest Association, that called for a nationwide farm strike May 1.

Seven Anderson of Edgar, Neb., promoter of the American Farmers Vigilance Committee's strike threat, attended the meeting, which was a secret session of representatives from the 4,000 producing farms that have $6,000,000 worth of livestock in the county.

The resolution called for the strike unless:

1. OPA was abolished.
2. Farmers were allowed cost of production, with their help paid at the same rate as workers in other industries.
3. Department of Agriculture agreed to cooperate in operation of fact-finding farms to be set up by "dirt farmers" in various parts of the nation.
4. The government sets up and operates a system under which disputes between capital and labor may be settled justly and quickly without interruption of production or public services.

ALERT WARNINGS ARE CONTINUED IN HAWAII AND ALASKA

Rescue Workers Toil Through Night Searching
Wreckage of Demolished Homes After Great
Wall of Water Comes In From Ocean

BULLETIN

By United Press

Tidal waves hammered the Alaskan coast today, sweeping down on the Dutch harbor naval base in the second day of oceanic turmoil which devastated some areas of Hawaii where 300 persons were reported dead or missing.

Earth tremors shook the Aleutian chain early today. Navy officials described it as a two-minute quake of low intensity.

Four hours later, about 4:30 a. m. (Dutch Harbor time) Dutch Harbor naval officials said a tidal wave hit the naval base there, snapping a ferry cable but causing no other damage or casualties.

By United Press

Great tidal waves churned up in the Pacific ocean by a submarine earthquake appeared to be receding today, but alert warnings still continued at Kodiak off Alaska and in the Hawaiian islands where 300 persons were reported dead or missing.

Rescue workers toiled through last night searching through the wreckage of smashed homes on the islands of Hawaii and Oahu, and the known death toll was at least 140.

In Kodiak, fears that a new 100-foot high wall of water was racing toward the island diminished, Rear Adm. Ralph Jacobs, commander of the Alaskan sea frontier, said, however, that "emergency warnings" were issued to all personnel.

The tidal waves extended 7,000 miles up and down the Pacific, from the Aleutians to the western coast of South America. Dispatches from Chile said that high waves crushed small boats and destroyed coastal installations.

Residents were told to flee to higher ground.

Seismologists reported that a total of eight earthquakes were recorded during the rush of the tidal waves. The last tremor was recorded at Fordham university in New York shortly after 1 a. m. EST today.

All persons in the town of Kodiak and in beach villages already had been evacuated to higher ground. Jacobs said late observations indicated that the initial force of the tidal wave had been spent.

But the Hawaiian islands had suffered their worst disaster since the sneak Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Hundreds were injured and property damage ran into the millions of dollars.

Scouting planes from Kodiak and bases in the Hawaiian chain ranged far out at sea to check progress of the new tidal waves, which started yesterday in the wake of a submarine earthquake in the vicinity of Unimak island.

The tidal waves moved over a 4,000 mile arc, and caused death and destruction in the Aleutians, the Hawaiian and along the western coast of the United States.

The toll was extremely heavy on the island of Hawaii. An estimated 10,000 persons were made homeless as their beachfront dwellings

Radio Operator Tells How Waves Hit His Home

BY DICK RICHARDS
United Press Radio Operator

LANIKAI, Oahu, April 2—Our bedroom wall shuddered at 7 a. m. yesterday morning and a split second later it busted wide open and a torrent of salt water hit me in the face.

I found myself looking at daylight through a hole in the wall. I hollered at my wife, Elsa, and grabbed my two kids from another bedroom. We had a helluva time getting out of the house because all the doors were jammed when the house was rammed inland three feet against a giant banyan tree.

We finally managed to get the front door open and made for the hills in our pajamas and barefeet. When we came down an hour later the water was still knee-deep in the road paralleling the beach.

There was several inches of sand in our living room. The piano had been tossed from one side of the room to the other. The seaward walls of the house had collapsed and the roof and front side had fallen down.

A neighbor told me all he could see of my house when the wave struck was a portion of the roof surrounded by a swirling mass of foam.

My neighbor caught a three-foot fish in the road amid his floating furniture and I had to step lively in my back yard to avoid hundreds of sand crabs crawling over the ground.

Eighty percent of the houses along this beach have been washed out.

The damage must be at least a million dollars.

Both of these issues would be extremely embarrassing to the United States and Britain.

The United States has just suffered a major setback in its inter-American policy. Strong man Col. Juan Peron won the Argentine election despite American hopes and efforts to defeat him. Now the U. S. announces its plan to send an ambassador back to Argentina, only a few weeks after its blue book denounced Peron and his supporters as fascist supporters of the Axis during the war.

Dispatches from Shannon, Ireland, reporting two heavily-laden Russian couriers en route from Moscow to Washington with important dispatches aroused council's request for:

1. Explanation of the exact status of Soviet-Iranian negotiations.
2. Assurance that removal of Russian troops is not conditioned upon other Iranian concessions in oil, etc.

deed to overshadow a thousand good deeds, however more truly the latter may reflect the sterling character of the average American soldier on occupational duty."

The letter to chaplains was MacArthur's first public comment on the morals of American troops in Japan. In it he called on the chaplains for "strong, direct moral leadership."

MacArthur said houses of prostitution had been placed off limits and that other available measures had been taken to protect occupational troops from the spread of venereal disease.

MacArthur said every effort was being made to increase opportunities for educational advancement and "healthy recreation for soldiers off duty."

"The problem is one of self control and self discipline," he said, "characteristics which have never failed American soldiers in time of stress."

He said it would be "useless" to ban social contact with the Japanese. Even if such an order could be enforced, he explained, it would "violate the inherent self respect and personal rights of the American soldier."

HOME, HOSPITAL MAKING PLANS FOR REMODELING

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Home and Hospital at the home of Mrs. Charles G. Shulze, South Court street, Monday, every member was present except Mrs. Harley Colwell who has not returned from Florida where she spent the winter months.

Arrangements were made at this meeting for repairs and readjustments that will be made at the East Main street home where a capacity number of women is now housed.

Thirteen patients are now being cared for at the convalescent home, South Scioto street, and plans were formulated at this time to secure more help and the aid of additional nurses. More equipment will be purchased for this home in the near future and arrangements for obtaining it were made at this meeting.

CUPID AHEAD OF DIVORCE COURT RECORDS REVEAL

Pickaway County marriages are keeping a jump ahead of divorces. This situation, which is in contrast with many other Ohio counties where divorces are running ahead of marriages, was disclosed Tuesday by a check of official records.

During March 15 couples applied in Probate Court for licenses to wed, as against 13 divorce suits filed in the office of Clerk of Courts, Arthur Wilder. In addition two alimony suits were filed in March.

ders rolled ashore in the swirling wall of water. The town's gas works was put out of commission. Damage also was widespread on Oahu island where other thousands were made homeless.

The state militia and U. S. Army troops were on emergency duty and squadrons of P-61 fighter planes were sent out to search for new tidal waves and flash back warning signals.

Ships' Fate Unknown
High waves were reported along most of the west coast of the United States during yesterday afternoon. Wharves, resort places, Navy installations and ship moorings were battered. An abandoned coast guard barracks at Half Moon Bay, Cal., 30 miles south of San Francisco, was washed away.

Hundreds of small boats were torn loose from their moorings. With communications badly disrupted, the fate of hundreds of ships at sea was not yet determined. One vessel, the Brigham Victory out of Puget Sound, Wash., sent word that she was "trapped" by the tidal wave between the breakwater and the dock at Hilo.

Howard Elliott, executive director of the Hawaiian territory Red Cross, said there were sufficient emergency supplies in the islands to handle the homeless and injured.

Army bulldozers, the kind that once ran over Japanese defenses, charged into the wreckage of homes along roads on northeastern Oahu and cleared paths through which Army trucks carried the homeless to emergency shelter.

Started In Aleutians
The huge waves were believed to have originated in the vicinity of Unimak island in the Aleutians.

Deaths and Funerals

LONNIE F. FLANNERY

Lonnie Follen Flannery, 55, of Ross County, a World War I veteran died at 10:15 a. m. Monday in the Veterans Hospital at Dayton. The body was removed to the L. E. Hill funeral home, Kingston.

Mr. Flannery was born April 14, 1890 in Elliott County, Ky., the son of Isaac and Mandy Porter Flannery. He was a farmer and paper mill worker.

The survivors are his wife, Sallie; six daughters, Mrs. Virginia McGraw, Route 1, Circleville; Mrs. Barbara Hall, Greenup, Ky.; Mrs. Helen Harsley and Mrs. Alma Harsley, both of Route 1, Chillicothe; and Deloris and Wanda, at home; three sons, Virgil, Donald and Jimmie, all at home; a brother, Jack Flannery, Tongue, Ky.; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Little Rosie Baptist church at Smith Branch, Ky., with the Rev. Thomas Ratcliff officiating. Burial will be in a Smith Branch cemetery.

MRS. ADA J. MAY

Mrs. Ada J. May, 89, died at 5 a. m. Tuesday in the home of her son, Percy W. May, Wayne township. Death was attributed to complications. She was ill for several months. Mrs. May was born Oct. 13, 1856 in Ross county, the daughter of Isaac and Susan Barton Lutz, and she was married Sept. 11, 1879 to Ira L. May who preceded her in death.

Mrs. May was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The survivors of Mrs. May, who was a member of the Presbyterian church, include two other sons, be in addition to the regular army. The figures also exclude any men who might be called up under the proposed peacetime military training program now being considered by congress.

Members of the reserve called up for training this Summer will concentrate on technical subjects for the most part, the Army said, including ordnance motor vehicle assembly, tire repair companies, signal corps units and construction battalions.

In addition to summer field training, members of all three categories also will meet throughout the year for training in their home communities. This would be similar to the training program by national guardsmen.

The reserve units will be organized according to reserve military areas recently set up by the war department. They will be under the commanding generals of the various Army service commands.

Reserve ground forces will include airborne, armored and infantry divisions as well as supporting units. The air forces reserves also will include both combat and service forces, the Army said.

FOUR PICKAWAY COUNTY YOUTHS ARE INDUCTED

Names of four 18-year-old youths who were inducted into the Army from a contingent sent to Fort Hayes, Columbus, March 27, by the Selective Service Board, Circleville, were announced Tuesday.

The names:
Jimmy Ralph Hatfield, Route 2, Canal Winchester; Wayne Edward Stewart, 962 South Washington street; Paul Edward Miller, Ashville; and Luther Thomas Wilson, Route 1, Circleville.

Lutz May, Wayne township; and Leslie D. May, Circleville; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. W. K. Orr, Kingston; and Mrs. Clark Beale, Mt. Sterling.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Mader chapel, Circleville, with the Rev. Carl Kennedy officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call after Wednesday noon.

UNO COUNCIL BRACED FOR NEW SOVIET MOVES

Questions Concerning Greece And Indonesia May Come Up At Meeting

NEW YORK, April 2—United Nations security council members braced themselves today for possible Soviet retaliation against the United States and Great Britain—leading prosecutors of Iran's case against Russia.

At 11 a. m. EST., only 24 hours remained before the next council meeting. The opening of that meeting tomorrow is the deadline for both Iran and Russia to reply to the council's request for clarification of their dispute.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will return to New York late today to resume direction of the U. S. delegation in the Iranian case. He is ready to press council consideration of Iran's charges in detail if the Russians do not reply or get out of Iran.

There are a number of other difficult political issues the Soviet Union could bring before the council—as it did in London—if it wishes.

Fireworks Seen

Some diplomats connected with the council would be surprised if the Soviet Union accepts the UNO "formula" set up for disposal of the Iranian case without coupling its reply with charges against Britain and possibly the United States which might overshadow the Iranian issue.

In London when the Iranians brought their first case against Russia to the council, the Soviet Union and Soviet Ukraine snapped back immediately with charges against British policy in Indonesia and Greece. The Russians still think that the British urged the Iranians to make those original charges and are extremely bitter about the leading role Byrnes has played in the Iranian case here.

List Issues

Issues the Russians are most likely to raise include: Greece—Where Soviet-favored leftist forces were soundly defeated in Sunday's election by the Royalist-Populist group. Both American and British troops were in Greece acting as "observers" during Sunday's election.

Indonesia—Where a Dutch-Indonesian settlement has not been reached but is reported near.

Iceland—Where American troops are still quartered more than six months after the end of the Japanese war. Dispatches in Scandinavian papers report that Iceland has sent a note to the U. S. asking it to remove its troops.

Cuba—Where the U. S. plans on May 20 to turn over its wartime built bases to the Cuban government but to retain Guantanamo. Cuban Communist papers and the Moscow radio have been citing this as a case of American troops in another sovereign nation.

More Trouble Feared
In addition there is always the possibility Russia may toss Spain and Argentina into the council. (Continued on Page Two)

Morality Is Urged By MacArthur

General Asks Soldiers To Watch Relations With Japanese Women

TOKYO, April 2—General Douglas MacArthur today called on U. S. troops in Japan to observe a "high standard of morality" in their relations with Japanese women to avoid sorrow and distress in their American homes.

Commenting on letters received from America, MacArthur said "grave concern" was being expressed over published reports which suggested "widespread" promiscuity among GI's and Japanese girls.

"Unfortunately," he said in a letter to Army chaplains, "there has been a growing tendency to misconstrue the word 'fraternization'—to clothe it with the sole meaning of immorality—and greatly over-emphasize and misinterpret the relationship between members of the American occupying forces and the Japanese people."

"This results," he continued, "from the prominence of the American uniform in Japan—a prominence which causes one misinterpretation."

WHEAT MOVING PLAN STUDIED

U. S. Farmers May Be Given Certificates To Get Food On Its Way

WASHINGTON, April 2—The government was putting finishing touches today on a new program to pry loose critically needed wheat from farm storage bins and start it on its way to hunger areas overseas.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson indicated that he would have an official announcement on the program later this week. It was believed the plan would call for the government to give farmers non-interest bearing certificates for their wheat.

These certificates could be cashed any time between now and next March 31 for whatever price wheat might be bringing at that time. This would give farmers the advantage of any rise in prices after they turned their wheat over to the government.

It was estimated, for instance, that wheat prices might soar as much as 50 cents a bushel should congress approve the Pace bill. That measure would require the government to figure farm labor costs in computing farm support. (Continued on Page Two)

Impossible Collision Of Two Submarines Revealed

PEARL HARBOR, April 2—Navy officials disclosed today the "it-couldn't-happen" story of two submarines colliding in the Pacific during the war in a freak accident involving odds of 119,594,745,000 to one.

The collision occurred on Feb. 23, 1945, when the U. S. S. Flounder was rammed by the bow of the U. S. S. Hoe off French Indo-China in the South China sea. Both submarines were cruising at periscope depth.

Navy mathematicians, after extensive calculations, said it was "virtually impossible" for two submarines, each 300 by 27 feet, and each equipped with ultra-modern safety and detection devices, ramming in an ocean with 68,634,000 square miles of surface.

However, Cmdr. J. E. Stevens, Flushing, N. Y., and Lt. Cmdr. M. P. Refe III, Belmont, Mass., commanding officers of the Flounder and Hoe respectively, said it did happen whether it could or not.

PREFERS ARMY TO COAL STRIKE

JOHN KONDRACH, left, 32-year-old Martins Ferry, O., miner and father of six children, is congratulated by Staff Sgt. Robert Thorn of the Wheeling, W. Va., recruiting office after Kondrach enlisted in the Army because he was afraid he wouldn't be able to support his family during the coal strike. His Army pay, including allotments, will be $208 a month. He was deferred from military service during the war. (International)

New Army Reserve Corps Will Train This Summer

WASHINGTON, April 2—The Army announced today that its new streamlined volunteer reserve corps will take the field this summer for its first postwar training program.

The reserve eventually will be about six times as large as that set up after World War I. It will be organized to back up the regular army swiftly in case of national emergency.

It will be divided into three categories. The first will include units maintained at full wartime strength and supplied with all the basic equipment necessary for instant mobilization.

Other groups will have a full wartime complement of officers and all necessary equipment but only a skeleton force of enlisted men. The third category will include officers only.

The war department estimated that approximately 225,000 officer veterans of World War II and about 300,000 enlisted men already have signed up for the new reserve corps.

Eventually this number was expected to be increased to 662,000 officers and men or about six times as many as in 1920 when there were 107,083 officers and men in the reserve corps. This will (Continued on Page Two)

ARMY PRIVATE HAILED AS HERO

Soldier Who Flew From U. S. To See Dying Son Rescues Teacher And Children

HILO, Hawaii, April 2—An Army private who flew 5,000 miles from Fort Benning, Ga., in order to be with the dying infant son he had never seen was acclaimed a hero today after the rescue of a school teacher and two children who had been washed into the sea by a tidal wave.

Army authorities said Pfc. Francis M. Malani, accompanied by two other men and a boy, commandeered a small outboard motorboat and braved rough seas to rescue the teacher and her pupils who had been clinging to a makeshift raft more than nine hours.

Dr. Libert Fernandez, another unidentified man and a boy named Masau, made the perilous rescue trip of nearly two miles.

The teacher was identified only as a "Miss McGuinness." The children's names could not be learned immediately. Their condition was not known.

COURTESY CALLS TO BE MADE BY AMERICAN SHIPS

ABOARD BATTLESHIP MISSOURI IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, April 2—Adm. H. K. Hewitt, commander of U. S. naval forces in Europe, disclosed today that the Navy had worked out an ambitious program which would take American warships on courtesy calls to several overseas countries.

The Missouri herself will make six goodwill visits in the Mediterranean area this month, Hewitt said, while the cruiser Providence will make two others. During the late spring other fleet units will visit Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and The Netherlands.

Hewitt said the program represents the largest American undertaking of its kind since 1925 when the fleet went to Australia. He added that it was reminiscent of the globe-circling cruise of 1908 when Hewitt went along as a midshipman aboard the old Missouri.

'STALLING' IS CHARGED BY MINERS, OWNERS

No Progress Is Reported In Coal Dispute; Meatmen Threaten New Strike

By United Press
More than 800,000 U. S. workers were idle today in strikes and shutdowns. A mine workers' strike closed the nation's soft coal mines and public transportation in two cities was at a standstill.

In the coal dispute, negotiations between United Mine Workers' (AFL) President John L. Lewis and management representatives ended without progress. Each side accused the other of "stalling" tactics.

The parties will meet again today, however, to continue their attempts to settle the dispute over safety regulations and health benefits which sent 400,000 miners out of the pits at midnight Sunday and halted output of fuel vitally needed by the nation's industries and railroads.

Many Still Walking

Other major developments:
1. More than 2,000,000 residents of Akron, O., and Detroit continued to rely on private transportation as efforts to end transit strikes in both cities collapsed.

2. Government conciliators said progress had been made toward settlement of the 72-day-old strike of 30,000 employees in 10 plants of International Harvester company. Negotiations were to be resumed today at Washington.

3. The CIO packinghouse workers warned they might renew their strike to protest layoffs which they claimed had resulted from the industry's refusal to purchase livestock at present prices. The union charged 20,000 workers had been laid off since they returned to their jobs after their recent strike over wages.

Stalemate Reported

4. A negotiation meeting between CIO President Philip Murray and Dwyll A. Price, president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., ended in a stalemate. The two officials failed to agree on a wage increase that would have ended the 78-day-old strike of the (Continued on Page Two)

FARM BUREAU IN FAVOR OF PRICE CEILING SETUP

COLUMBUS, April 2—Members of the Ohio Farm Bureau advisory council today said they were opposed to any relaxation of price ceilings.

Harry W. Culbreath, organization director of the Ohio Farm Bureau, said farm groups meeting throughout the state in March discussed inflation more than 200 times, with the majority of farmers opposed to release of price controls.

"Farm prices, especially egg prices, are a big worry to the farmer," Culbreath said. "Records show that many farmers believe that since parity prices and restrictions have not been too successful, they would like to give parity income a chance."

Farmers want to be fair about prices, but feel they deserve the same treatment as other groups, he said. He added that "they know if the price line is broken, they stand to suffer from runaway inflation."

25 NEW VEHICLES SOLD HERE DURING LAST MONTH

Total of 598 titles was issued during March in the motor vehicle department of the office of Pickaway County Clerk of Courts Arthur Wilder.

In making this announcement, Tuesday, the clerk of courts said that last month's business included issuance of 37 duplicate titles, making of 152 lien notations, 181 lien cancellations, and sales during March of 16 new automobiles, six new trucks, two jeeps, and one new house trailer.

TAFT-BRICKER FORCES ON TOP

Election Of Reece As GOP Chairman Seen As Big Victory For Ohioans

WASHINGTON, April 2—The election of Rep. E. Carroll Reece of Tennessee as Republican national chairman was counted a significant victory today for the Taft-Bricker forces within the GOP.

The soft-spoken, 56-year-old "border state" congressman was named to the party chairmanship late yesterday. He won despite opposition from supporters of Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, the liberal ex-governor of Minnesota who is considered a strong contender for the GOP's 1948 presidential nomination.

Reece generally was regarded as representing the more conservative views of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and former Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, the GOP's 1944 vice presidential nominee.

The new chairman, a veteran of 26 years in congress, said he would resign his seat in the house to devote his full time to the Republic. (Continued on Page Two)

FARM STRIKE IS DISCUSSED AT LICKING MEET

HEBRON, April 2—Licking county farmers today discussed a resolution, adopted by the county's unit of the Ohio Marketing Protest Association, that called for a nationwide farm strike May 1.

Seven Anderson of Edgar, Neb., promoter of the American Farmers Vigilante Committee's strike threat, attended the meeting, which was a secret session of representatives from the 4,000 producing farms that have $6,000,000 worth of livestock in the county.

The resolution called for the strike unless:

1. OPA was abolished.
2. Farmers were allowed cost of production, with their help paid at the same rate as workers in other industries.
3. Department of Agriculture agreed to cooperate in operation of fact-finding farms to be set up by "dirt farmers" in various parts of the nation.
4. The government sets up and operates a system under which disputes between capital and labor may be settled justly and quickly without interruption of production or public services.

ALERT WARNINGS ARE CONTINUED IN HAWAII AND ALASKA

Rescue Workers Toil Through Night Searching Wreckage of Demolished Homes After Great Wall of Water Comes In From Ocean

BULLETIN

By United Press

Tidal waves hammered the Alaskan coast today, sweeping down on the Dutch harbor naval base in the second day of oceanic turmoil which devastated some areas of Hawaii where 300 persons were reported dead or missing.

Earth tremors shook the Aleutian chain early today. Navy officials described it as a two-minute quake of low intensity.

Four hours later, about 4:30 a. m. (Dutch Harbor time) Dutch Harbor naval officials said a tidal wave hit the naval base there, snapping a ferry cable but causing no other damage or casualties.

By United Press

Great tidal waves churned up in the Pacific ocean by a submarine earthquake appeared to be receding today, but alert warnings still continued at Kodiak off Alaska and in the Hawaiian islands where 300 persons were reported dead or missing.

Rescue workers toiled through last night searching through the wreckage of smashed homes on the islands of Hawaii and Oahu, and the known death toll was at least 140.

In Kodiak, fears that a new 100-foot high wall of water was racing toward the island diminished. Rear Adm. Ralph Jacobs, commander of the Alaskan sea frontier, said, however, that "emergency warnings" were issued to all personnel.

The tidal waves extended 7,000 miles up and down the Pacific, from the Aleutians to the western coast of South America. Dispatches from Chile said that high waves crushed small boats and destroyed coastal installations. Residents were told to flee to higher ground.

Seismologists reported that a total of eight earthquakes were recorded during the rush of the tidal waves. The last tremor was recorded at Fordham university in New York shortly after 1 a. m. EST today.

All persons in the town of Kodiak and in beach villages already had been evacuated to higher ground. Jacobs said late observations indicated that the initial force of the tidal wave had been spent.

But the Hawaiian islands had suffered their worst disaster since the sneak Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Hundreds were injured and property damage ran into the millions of dollars.

Scouting planes from Kodiak and bases in the Hawaiian chain ranged far out at sea to check progress of the new tidal waves, which started yesterday in the wake of a submarine earthquake in the vicinity of Unimak island.

The tidal waves moved over a 4,000 mile arc, and caused death and destruction in the Aleutians, the Hawaiians and along the western coast of the United States. The toll was extremely heavy on the island of Hawaii. An estimated 10,000 persons were made homeless as their beachfront dwellings were smashed.

Communications were disrupted generally and Kodiak was entirely cut off.

Fear More Waves
Fears were felt that still more tidal waves might hit the Hawaiians. Hawaii island suffered the worst blow. Dwellings and warehouses along the north coast were smashed. Great quantities of food were destroyed. At Hilo, four-foot boulders as their beachfront dwellings (Continued on Page Two)

Radio Operator Tells How Waves Hit His Home

BY DICK RICHARDS
United Press Radio Operator
LANIKAI, Oahu, April 2—Our bedroom wall shuddered at 7 a. m. yesterday morning and a split second later it burst wide open and a torrent of salt water hit me in the face.
I found myself looking at daylight through a hole in the wall. I hollered at my wife, Elsa, and grabbed my two kids from another bedroom. We had a helluva time getting out of the house because all the doors were jammed when the house was rammed inland three feet against a giant banyan tree.
We finally managed to get the front door open and made for the hills in our pajamas and barefeet. When we came down an hour later the water was still knee-deep in the road paralleling the beach.
There was several inches of sand in our living room. The piano had been tossed from one side of the room to the other. The seaward walls of the house had collapsed and the roof and front side had fallen down.
A neighbor told me all he could see of my house when the wave struck was a portion of the roof surrounded by a swirling mass of foam.
My neighbor caught a three-foot fish in the road amid his floating furniture and I had to step lively in my back yard to avoid hundreds of sand crabs crawling over the ground.
Eighty percent of the houses along this beach have been washed out.
The damage must be at least a million dollars.

BOARD MAY FAIL TO MEET APRIL QUOTA IN DRAFT

Shortage Of Men Eligible For Induction Into Service Revealed

Pickaway county will likely be unable to meet its call for draftees during April.

This was disclosed Tuesday by the County Selective Service Board. Board officials said they were prohibited from divulging the number they have been asked to call to service in April.

The situation in Pickaway county exists generally throughout Ohio. State Selective Service headquarters disclosed that plans call for drafting 6,000 men in Ohio during April but that the state will probably be unable to meet that call.

Ohio has averaged approximately 2,000 men a month for the past year, including both inductions and enlistments for which local boards receive credit.

The 6,000 April call is more than twice the normal call because of the shortages developed during the past year. State Selective Service spokesmen said. The national call for April is 125,000.

Limited service men who are non-fathers and are between the ages of 18 and 26 provide the only reservoir from which men can be drafted, the State Selective Service officials explained. Induction of approximately 3,000 youths has been postponed because they attend colleges or high schools.

Officials of the local draft board said they have a few 18-year-olds not attending school who can be called to service but they explained that the call must under existing regulations be restricted to men under the age of 26 who are not attending college or high school.

Capt. Hildeburn R. Martin, Jr., of the Marine Corps, has left Circleville for the Naval Training Station at Dallas, Tex., after spending a three-month leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hildeburn Martin, West Mill street. As battery commander for the 18th Anti-Aircraft Division he served 21 months overseas and received a citation before returning home. The citation, recommending a commendation ribbon, was issued by Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commanding the Fleet Marine Forces in the Pacific. The citation says it is for "excellent service in the line of his profession while serving in a Marine Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion from July 15, 1943 to September 1, 1945. Capt. Martin served as battery commander in the light anti-aircraft group, and performed his duties in a meritorious and efficient manner. The excellent performance of his battery during this period was a direct reflection on his ability to organize and train an anti-aircraft unit. His excellent knowledge of the 40 mm. gun and its fire control equipment and his ability to impart this knowledge to enlisted personnel was of particular value. His conduct and devotion to duty throughout were in keeping with the highest traditions of the U. S. Naval Service."

Capt. Martin's brother, Stuart Martin, recently received his discharge in Tokyo and now is working as a civilian for the U. S. Civil Service in Japan.

Pfc. Ernest Irvin, Williamsport, was discharged from the Army, March 28, according to an official notification issued from Camp Atterbury, Ind.

Discharge from the Army of Cpl. Murrell J. Heffner, Route 1, Amanda, March 28, has been officially announced from Camp Atterbury, Ind.

BOGGS URGES FATS BE SAVED

Greater Conservation Of Waste Products Needed To Relieve Shortage

John G. Boggs, County committeeman of the A. A. A. called for additional efforts on the part of Pickaway County housewives in the conservation of fats and oils.

Mr. Boggs said that America is committed to furnish 365,000 tons of these products to famine areas within the next three months.

He pointed out that a savings of one teaspoon of fat per day for every man, woman and child in America would result in a total savings of one million pounds daily.

Seven methods of fats and oils conservation listed by Mr. Boggs are:

Make better use of meat drippings for cooking; don't use as much for seasoning, gravies, etc.; save and re-use fats and oils for cooking purposes; render excess fats on meats and save bacon grease for cooking purposes; sal-

USE OF LIME, FERTILIZER IS SAID PROFITABLE

COLUMBUS, April 2—Ohio farmers today were advised that high wheat and corn prices make applications of lime and fertilizer a profitable investment.

Rural economists at Ohio State University pointed out that 35 vage all fats that cannot be re-used and turn them in to the butcher or grocer; go easy with the oils and salad dressings; serve fewer fried foods.

"If each Ohio family would just save a little in the next few months," Mr. Boggs said, "they would save a lot of people from a lot of hunger."

Both of these issues would be extremely embarrassing to the United States and Britain.

The United States has just suffered a major setback in its inter-American policy. Strong man Col. Juan Peron won the Argentine election despite American hopes and efforts to defeat him. Now the U. S. announces its plan to send an ambassador back to Argentina, only a few weeks after its blue book denounced Peron and his supporters as fascist supporters of the Axis during the war.

Dispatches from Shannon, Ireland, reporting two heavily-laden Russian couriers en route from Moscow to Washington with important dispatches aroused council's request for:

1. Explanation of the exact status of Soviet-Iranian negotiations.
2. Assurance that removal of Russian troops is not conditioned upon other Iranian concessions in oil, etc.

deed to overshadow a thousand good deeds, however more truly the latter may reflect the sterling character of the average American soldier on occupational duty." The letter to chaplains was MacArthur's first public comment on the morals of American troops in Japan. In it he called on the chaplains for "strong, direct moral leadership."

MacArthur said houses of prostitution had been placed off limits and that other available measures had been taken to protect occupation troops from the spread of venereal disease.

MacArthur said every effort was being made to increase opportunities for educational advancement and "healthy recreation for soldiers off duty."

"The problem is one of self control and self discipline," he said, "characteristics which have never failed American soldiers in time of stress."

He said it would be "useless" to ban social contact with the Japanese. Even if such an order could be enforced, he explained, it would "violate the inherent self respect and personal rights of the American soldier."

HOME, HOSPITAL MAKING PLANS FOR REMODELING

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Home and Hospital at the home of Mrs. Charles G. Shulze, South Court street, Monday, every member was present except Mrs. Harley Colwell who has not returned from Florida where she spent the Winter months.

Arrangements were made at this meeting for repairs and readjustments that will be made at the East Main street home where a capacity number of women is now housed.

Thirteen patients are now being cared for at the convalescent home, South Scioto street, and plans were formulated at this time to secure more help and the aid of additional nurses. More equipment will be purchased for this home in the near future and arrangements for obtaining it were made at this meeting.

CUPID AHEAD OF DIVORCE COURT RECORDS REVEAL

Pickaway County marriages are keeping a jump ahead of divorces. This situation, which is in contrast with many other Ohio counties where divorces are running ahead of marriages, was disclosed Tuesday by a check of official records.

During March 15 couples applied in Probate Court for licenses to wed, as against 13 divorce suits filed in the office of Clerk of Courts, Arthur Wilder. In addition two alimony suits were filed in March.

ders rolled ashore in the swirling wall of water. The town's gas works was put out of commission. Damage also was widespread on Oahu island where other thousands were made homeless.

The state militia and U. S. Army troops were on emergency duty and squadrons of P-61 fighter planes were sent out to search for new tidal waves and flash back warning signals.

Ships' Fate Unknown

High waves were reported along most of the west coast of the United States during yesterday afternoon. Wharves, resort places, Navy installations and ship moorings were battered. An abandoned coast guard barracks at Half Moon Bay, Cal., 30 miles south of San Francisco, was washed away. Hundreds of small boats were torn loose from their moorings.

With communications badly disrupted, the fate of hundreds of ships at sea was not yet determined. One vessel, the Brigham Victory out of Puget Sound, Wash., sent word that she was "trapped" by the tidal wave between the breakwater and the dock at Hilo.

Howard Elliott, executive director of the Hawaiian territory Red Cross, said there were sufficient emergency supplies in the islands to handle the homeless and injured.

Army bulldozers, the kind that once ran over Japanese defenses, charged into the wreckage of homes along roads on northeastern Oahu and cleared paths through which Army trucks carried the homeless to emergency shelter.

Started In Aleutians

The huge waves were believed to have originated in the vicinity of Unimak island in the Aleutians.

Deaths and Funerals

LONNIE F. FLANNERY

Lonnie Follen Flannery, 55, of Ross County, a World War I veteran died at 10:15 a. m. Monday in the Veterans Hospital at Dayton. The body was removed to the L. E. Hill funeral home, Kings-ton.

Mr. Flannery was born April 14, 1890 in Elliott County, Ky., the son of Isaac and Mandy Porter Flannery. He was a farmer and paper mill worker.

The survivors are his wife, Sallie; six daughters, Mrs. Virginia McGraw, Route 1, Circleville; Mrs. Barbara Hall, Greenup, Ky.; Mrs. Helen Harsley and Mrs. Alma Harsley, both of Route 1, Chillicothe; and Deloris and Wanda, at home; three sons, Virgil, Donald and Jimmie, all at home; a brother, Jack Flannery, Tonga, Ky.; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Little Rosie Baptist church at Smith Branch, Ky., with the Rev. Thomas Ratcliff officiating. Burial will be in a Smith Branch cemetery.

MRS. ADA J. MAY

Mrs. Ada J. May, 89, died at 5 a. m. Tuesday in the home of her son, Percy W. May, Wayne township. Death was attributed to complications. She was ill for several months. Mrs. May was born Oct. 13, 1856 in Ross county, the daughter of Isaac and Susan Barton Lutz, and she was married Sept. 11, 1879 to Ira L. May who preceded her in death.

Mrs. May was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The survivors of Mrs. May, who was a member of the Presbyterian church, include two other sons.

be in addition to the regular army. The figures also exclude any men who might be called up under the proposed peacetime military training program now being considered by congress.

Members of the reserve called up for training this summer will concentrate on technical subjects for the most part, the Army said, including ordnance motor vehicle assembly, tire repair companies, signal corps units and construction battalions.

In addition to summer field training, members of all three categories also will meet throughout the year for training in their home communities. This would be similar to the training program by national guardsmen.

The reserve units will be organized according to reserve military areas recently set up by the war department. They will be under the commanding generals of the various Army service commands.

Reserve ground forces will include airborne, armored and infantry divisions as well as supporting units. The air forces reserve also will include both combat and service forces, the Army said.

FOUR PICKAWAY COUNTY YOUTHS ARE INDUCTED

Names of four 18-year-old youths who were inducted into the Army from a contingent sent to Fort Hayes, Columbus, March 27, by the Selective Service Board, Circleville, were announced Tuesday.

The names: Jimmy Ralph Hatfield, Route 2, Canal Winchester; Wayne Edward Stewart, 962 South Washington street; Paul Edward Miller, Ashville; and Luther Thomas Wilson, Route 1, Circleville.

Lutz May, Wayne township; and Leslie D. May, Circleville; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. W. K. Orr, Kingston; and Mrs. Clark Beale, Mt. Sterling.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Mader chapel, Circleville, with the Rev. Carl Kennedy officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call after Wednesday noon.

RED PRESSURE ON IRAN SEEN

Reports Say Soviets Trying To Get Answers To UNO To Be Similar

TEHRAN, April 2—Russia was reported unofficially today to be trying to persuade Iran to answer the UNO questionnaire on Soviet-Iran relations in such a manner as to reflect an identity of views between the governments.

The first indication anywhere that Russia would answer the security council questionnaire dispatched to Moscow and Tehran last Friday came in the reports that the Soviets sought to shape the Iranian response to agree with their own.

Amidst a whirl of diplomatic activity, an aerial survey showed that Red army tanks and artillery formerly based at Kazvin had moved northward toward the Caspian port of Pahlevi.

Horse-drawn artillery was seen moving north on the road from Kazvin, 90 miles northwest of Tehran, to Resht. Most of the Soviet equipment had been removed from Kazvin. A train was seen in the Kazvin station, evidently ready for a northward run.

BEATING THE LOBBIES

THERE is one point where private enterprise is badly needed. That is in opposing the big and highly paid lobbies which so often bring pressure for interests opposed to those of the private citizen. What can one citizen do against a powerful pressure group? He can write to his Senator and Representative.

Let him take pen in hand and tell his duly elected Congressman what he wants. The congressman, if he wants to be re-elected, will consider seriously the letters and postcards of private citizens. He is not likely to change a well-thought-out plan of action for one crackpot idea. But he will listen to what the simple citizen has to say. If it makes sense, and if other citizens say the same thing, the representative will give it real attention.

Frequently the congressman has to make up his mind on difficult questions without knowing what his folks back home really want. And he might be very much surprised to know the grassroots attitude on pork barrel questions. Sometimes constituents would much prefer sensible decisions to hunks of pork.

The ordinary citizen is the man with the last word. He has the vote. It is up to him to learn about public questions of importance, to think about them, and to make his desires plainly known at Washington—not by signing papers he knows nothing about, but by writing his own short letter. A postcard will do.

MORE SEWING

HOME dressmaking is hitting an all-time high this spring, after a steady increase through the last few years. Pattern sales and yard goods sales are booming, and good sewing teachers have women waiting to get into their classes.

There always was a financial gain in sewing at home, and the scarcities and poor materials of wartime accentuated the advantages. The new note is the great demand for professional training. Women making their own clothes today are not willing to improvise uncertainly by themselves. They would rather learn from an expert and be sure of the results.

Man's still ahead of Nature in destructive power. Strikes cost more than floods. Man can do more harm just by doing nothing than Nature can by her darndest. War's a still better example. World War I cost $100,000,000 to start with, more than all the fires and earthquakes and floods in history. With the opening up of World War II Nature learned more than ever what a piker she is.

With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

By JACK GAVAR

NEW YORK, April 2—Having been around when he was a freshman in the political game, I thought it was time I checked up on Senator Claghorn now that he is a seasoned campaigner. He looked a bit dog-eared.

"Ah'm right tired, son—beat that," he acknowledged. "Between legislating and helmin' out Squire Allen on his radio show and answerin' the correspondence from my constituents, ah'm plumb tuckered. Ah mean ah'm so all-fired tired that . . ."

The senator had a fistful of mail at the time and while he held himself spellbound with a windy recital of his condition, I took the liberty of going through some of the letters to see how the folks back home felt about him. There was one small note of complaint among the avalanche of praise for his steadfast stand against anything having the taint of the Nawth. For once he had tripped over his phobia. A couple of writers were chiding him for stating last week that there is no such place as Nawth Cahlina; that so far as he's concerned it is upper South Cahlina.

However, a female fifth-grader of Winston-Salem, N. C., wrote that she and her chums were willing to accept the senator's revision, and added:

"If you don't mind, I would like to have your picture to frame. I would gladly take down Van Johnson for you."

Obviously the girl has never seen a likeness of the senator. She addressed her letter to "Senator Clang Horne" and maybe she's right.

A letter on the stationery of the city of Houston, Texas, demanded some quick action from the senator as follows:

"I heard the geese flying over last night—going north, my pet, going north. Can't you do something about this??? Well, if you can't, I'll remember you come next election, if you get what I mean."

A woman correspondent from Oak Ridge, Tenn., weighed in with these script suggestions for the radio show:

"The senator might say: 'Never looked out my porthole at all when I was on that European cruise for fear I'd see those cursed northern lights.' Or: 'I like Santa Claus, but I pity the poor guy. The housing shortage must be awful if he has to live at the North Pole.' OR: 'You never hear me claim to be a true blue southerner because the only colors I've a hankering for are gray, scarlett and rhett. That's a pun, son."

A letter from Osprey, Fla., sought to give the senator a lesson in southern history in the matter of the civil war.

"Never say 'civil war,' the correspondent wrote, "but adways say 'the war between the states.' . . . I feel sure you will see how nice it will be just to say 'the war between the states' when you refer to that unhappy time. It really sounds better, don't you think?"

By this time the senator had paused for a breath and I managed to get in some questions. I learned that the senator actually is about to buy a small piece of ground near Harlingen, Texas, which, appropriately enough is in that state's most southerly county, and that through his alter ego, Kenny Delmar, he is to essay a role on the Broadway stage. The show is "Around The World," a musical which Orson Welles is producing. Since congress might not approve such frivolous goings-on, the senator will appear in the show as an old-school southern colonel. But this disguise will not change his sentiments.

"Ah told this Welles, Ah say Ah warned the whippersnapper that there was just one thing Ah wouldn't stand for," the senator said. "Ah told him not to put the show into the Plymouth theater. Plymouth—that's a Massachusetts word, son, and Massachusetts is so far Nawth that even the rest of the danyankees think it's in Canada—the dominion of, that is."

A MINISTER LOOKS AT THE NEWS

"RUSSIA—A PROBLEM OR AN OPPORTUNITY"

By The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy

SEVERAL years ago, while attending theological seminary in Chicago, I assumed the student pastorate over a little Community Church in southern Wisconsin. Even though there was a Russian Orthodox Church in the community, nevertheless to our own Church School came the children of a Russian family.

To this day I cannot spell their last name, but I did learn to pronounce it. How I loved it when their turn came around, as it did often in that tiny congregation, for this Russian family to entertain me at Sunday dinner. Not only was the cooking excellent and varied, but a wholesome atmosphere pervaded the home—just as a delicious aroma is wafted from a kitchen.

The Sunday school lesson and the sermon were freely and frankly (and kindly) discussed, questions asked and honest attempts made to answer them. But what struck me most forcibly in this sincerely Christian home, was the fact that the mother, a large, good-humored, typical peasant woman, not very long out of Russia, was learning the English alphabet. And she was having a difficult time of it, much to the delight of her children and to her own consternation, especially when they affectionately teased her in my presence.

It has been a long time since I last visited in that home and was treated and respected as if I had been a member of the family. But it would be impossible and unforgivable were I ever to forget their respectful, though highly congenial hospitality.

I cannot boast of many friends of foreign blood and background, especially those of Russian lineage. But one does not have to know personally every individual of a country in order to understand that nation as a whole.

Now, this is indeed a very general statement and should be accepted as such. But its fundamental thesis holds good. During our war with Japan, hosts of people said, with heated emphasis and frozen hearts, "to hell with the Japanese!" and at the same time were quite unaware, and probably glad of it, that many, many Christians in Japan deeply lamented their country's blunders. Chief of these Christians is Kagawa, one of the noblest of all followers of Christ.

Our worst trouble, in this respect, is our apparent willingness to look for the worst people in a country and then think that every one else is like them. Whereas, if we looked first at someone such as Kagawa, we might come to appraise his countrymen in a far different light. And a personal friendship, such as that which I enjoyed with my Russian family, might be just the proper means to take.

But to return to our subject. It is true that no dominant Christian figure has emerged from the ravaged ruin that describes much of Russia—at least, not yet. After all, it has been some time since the Church has had a voice in the land of the Soviets. Christ hasn't been forgotten, but He has been the "Christ of the Padlocked Lips."

And yet it would be both foolish and blind on our part were we to despair of a great Christian leader's emerging from this huge European-Asiatic country. For PLAYING a No Trump game contract, the declarer often should concentrate on protecting himself against some one single greatest danger, and that is usually the opposition's long suit. Keeping one particular defender out of the lead is sometimes the only way to safeguard himself. Every resource should be exhausted first before attempting any play which, if it fails, would give that defender the lead.

Only two of the North-South pairs in a big duplicate reached that incorrect contract of 3-No Trumps, all of the others getting to the right spot of 4-Hearts and making an extra trick for a tie at top score. These No Trump declarers were therefore playing only to see who would avoid getting bottom score, and one of them made it. The spade 5 was laid at both of those tables, the Q going on and the A winning. One of those Souths lazily tackled the easiest course, finessing the heart

J to the K and then suffering the loss of four spade tricks.

The other declarer saw, after the first trick, that he was in no danger if East was kept out of the lead, and hence prevented from leading through the spade 5. He decided he would first try to pick up seven tricks in the minors before risking any heart finesse—any trick except to West. Embarking on this, he scored the diamond K and A, then led the club 3. When East played the 8, he put on the 9 and let West win.

Sizing up spades correctly, West led his heart 4, hoping South would finesse and get East in the lead. But South used the heart A, then tried for his even break of both minors. He scored the diamond Q, diamond 8, club A, club K and club 7, making his ninth trick, then lost the rest. Notice that he still could have played hearts after that if West held the K, to assure his game.

DIET AND HEALTH

Building Blocks of The Body

By HERMAN N. SUNDESEN, M.D.

PROTEINS are the very stuff of life.

These complex substances might be called the building blocks of the body since they enter into the composition of every cell. They are material from which new tissues are made and worn-out cells rebuilt.

Thus, it is doubly important that the mother-to-be get plenty of proteins. On this, her own well-being and that of her unborn child depend. Yet, a number of studies of the diets of pregnant women show that many do not get an adequate amount of protein.

Pregnancy Diet
Ruth M. Leverton and Thelma J. McMillan of Lincoln, Nebraska, carried out a study of the effectiveness of a simple diet plan which would make sure that the pregnant woman would get all of the protein she needed, particularly if she were suffering from anemia or lack of coloring in the blood. The simple recommendation which they made was that the pregnant woman should eat plenty of meat, that is, have a generous serving of meat at least twice a day.

Meat supplies plenty of protein and the proteins in meat furnish all of the essential amino acids. Proteins are made up of these amino acids and it has been found that ten of them are necessary for growth and the normal repair of tissue.

Furthermore, by eating two generous servings of meat twice a day, sufficient protein is supplied without crowding out of the diet other important foods such as eggs, vegetables, fruits, wholegrain cereals and butter.

Vitamins and Minerals
Meat contains other elements necessary for keeping the diet well-balanced, such as vitamins and minerals. It has a good appeal to the appetite. There is a widespread notion that it is not a good thing for women to eat much meat during pregnancy but the study which has been carried out proves that this is wrong.

The women studied were under 35 years of age. In addition to a regular diet and the use of meat, the majority of the women were receiving a preparation supplying vitamins A and D and calcium phosphate. For each woman who received this type of diet, another was chosen who had a similar diet without the extra meat, but instead a capsule supplying vitamin B-complex. Still another group equal in number received no supplement to the diet.

More Coloring
It was found that the women who received the meat had more coloring in the blood and a larger number of red blood cells and had better success in nursing their babies than the women who received the B-complex supplement or those who received no supplement at all. Furthermore, they suffered less often from edema or swelling of the tissues.

Hence, it is concluded that recommending to pregnant women that they increase the amount of protein in their diets is helpful in keeping up the coloring and red cells in the blood, avoiding edema and helping in breast feeding.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. L. B.: Does missing a monthly period always denote pregnancy?

Answer: Missing a monthly period does not always denote pregnancy. It is possible that there is some glandular disturbance which is responsible for your failure to menstruate. However, in order to be sure, a thorough and complete examination by the doctor is necessary. It is found that there is a glandular deficiency, treatment with glandular extracts may be of help. I suggest that you consult a specialist in disorders of this type.

SYNOPSIS

Jane Applebee, literary agent, regrets having invited her sister, Neal Tarrant, the glamorous actress, to share her New York apartment. Neal always took what she wanted, and in this instance it was Jane's erstwhile beau, Deane Kennard, rising author. During a visit to Elmington, the country estate of her other sister, Dita Pearce, Jane was intrigued by Mrs. Brenda Knight, an attractive stranger who had lost her way and spent the night there. Elmington had been purchased completely furnished and Dita, soon in need of a nursery, had recently given Neal the lush fittings from one of its boudoirs.

During the night Jane found Brenda Knight wandering about in the unfamiliar room. On Wednesday Jane gave a reception for her most important author and house guest, Margot Cane-Ingalls, recently arrived from Hollywood. Among the guests were Dr. Hunt Berwick, amateur criminologist and war buddy of Dita's husband, Dick; Brenda Knight, and Mr. Polly Woodford, famous courier who lived across the hall. Neal arrived with a stream of admirers, including Deane Kennard and Tonio Valente, wealthy South American. Margot was infuriated when the guests deserted her to pay homage to Neal, and deliberately embarrassed him, and Hunt, each of whom had met her on a previous occasion, by declaring she had never seen them before. Later that evening she asked Jane if she might have the apartment to herself on Friday afternoon.

When Jane suspected a man in the picture, Margot confessed she was greatly worried about something. On Thursday before Neal left for Boston (accompanied by Deane and Tonio) she gave Jane one of the huge pillows from her room because its rose color clashed with her hair. The apartment was empty when Jane arrived home late Friday afternoon, but in the shadows used by Margot and her unknown guest, Jane found the remnants of Deane's initiated cigarette. Fearing Hunt Berwick, who had come to take Margot and Jane to dinner, would see them, Jane threw the tell-tale butts down the incinerator. Jane and Hunt, puzzled by Margot's continued absence, got out to dinner. Jane is telling the story.

CHAPTER TEN
BEFORE WE rang Polly Woodford's bell that evening, at nine-thirty sharp, I went into my apartment to see if Margot had returned in the meantime.

But apparently she had not. At least there was no sign of her in her room or elsewhere. And so I shrugged off the puzzle and went back to the foyer, where Hunt Berwick was waiting for me.

I was standing at one of the consoles there, fingering a large gray envelope, and asked this here when we left? It's addressed to Mrs. Ingalls and delivered by hand. No stamp."

"I don't know," I told him. "All I can say is, I hadn't noticed it and it's one more mystery."

This mystery was soon to be cleared, however.

"What a pity, what a pity! When I'd arranged for my star mannequin to model only gowns created for her!" Polly twittered regretfully when I told him of Margot's disappearance. "How could she do that to me! After I put a note into your foyer telling her about it!"

"YOU put the note in my foyer?"

"A note in a gray envelope?" Hunt and I blurted out simultaneously.

Polly cocked his head and twittered—apologetically, this time. His twitters were graded all through the scale to express various emotions. "Mals oui. I hope you use gray stationery. And I hope you will forgive my entering your home without permission, Mademoiselle Applebee. But—when I found the door open—"

"You found my front door open?" I asked incredulously.

"A leetle bit." Polly showed a distance of half an inch between two fingers. "The departing visitor evidently hadn't quite closed it."

"What departing visitor?" Hunt asked abruptly.

Polly shrugged. "A gentleman. To say more would be indiscreet, no?"

"Not when the—or—gentleman was leaving Miss Applebee's apartment," Hunt pointed out dryly.

Polly's antics registered embarrassment. "That is true, in a way. But, after all, who I thought it was beside the point. All I saw clearly was a man in a light gray hat sinking out of sight in the elevator, when I came out to deliver the note. I concluded he came from Miss Applebee's apartment because there was no other place to come from—and—" He stopped, cocked his head and blinked, a bit maliciously. I thought, "He was about your height, Dr. Berwick. And I notice your hat is light gray also. So—it actually could have been you."

"It could, but it wasn't," Hunt told him briefly.

"Of course not. I just meant to illustrate my predicament," Polly agreed. And then went on: "When I found the door ajar I naturally imagined he had left it open and went in. But I rang the bell first. Word of honor, I did."

I couldn't understand it. If he had rung the bell, Margot would have heard and answered it.

And then a simple explanation occurred to me and I cut into the little courtesier's effusions excitedly: "Of course, that's it! I bet Margot Ingalls was in the elevator, too, and you didn't see her, Mr. Woodford."

Polly stopped talking, looked reflective, and then agreed, "C'est clair. Clever of you to think of it, Mademoiselle. Without a doubt she was in the elevator, hidden behind her escort."

And then he dropped the subject and ushered us into his apartment.

It was, without exception, the most beautiful I'd ever been in, and so original, only the imagination of a near-genius could have dreamed it up.

The whole rear of the house had been thrown into one enormous room which could be subdivided into three by means of decorative sliding walls—with such unsightly necessities as the kitchen and bathroom tucked away to both sides of the foyer.

The sliding walls looked like rich draperies when closed, hanging in majestic golden folds ornamented with a brilliant design of fantastic flowers and birds, and closed or half open, were a marvelous background for the equally rich and exotic furniture Polly had gathered in his home, each piece as much of a special creation as his beloved gowns.

Tonight the wall that ordinarily shut off his sleeping quarters served as a backdrop for his fashion show. And the splendor of it—one gorgeously gowned mannequin after the other emerging from between the shimmering folds, to the accompaniment of hidden music and a running patter of commentary from Polly—really deserved a larger audience than just Hunt and me. And a more appreciative one.

I can't, of course, definitely judge Hunt's reaction to the beauties of feminine apparel. But I know that I, who should have been in raptures over Polly's superb gowns, somehow was not.

The problem of Margot's strange absence, and my discovery that Deane, presumably in Boston with Neal, had been the mystery man of the afternoon, made me unable to concentrate on anything else, and I was honestly glad when the last "creation" had vanished from view and we were sitting at a perfectly appointed supper table in the dining room end of the apartment.

Here again Polly had given his originality full play.

A Chinese houseman served us caviar, large, gray pearls of it heaped high in a magnificent silver bowl, accompanied by a wonderful old Chateau Yquem.

"From the Maison Gourmet," our host explained. "Not like the press was unsalted by any means, but the best there is now. They have some method of unsalting it."

I am as a rule not overfond of Caviar. But I can truthfully say I enjoyed Polly's. And I enjoyed even more his delight in it. The contents of the silver bowl dwindled, vanished, were replenished and dwindled again, as Polly kept eating as if to establish a record. Which, however, didn't prevent him from chattering like a magpie and plying Hunt and me with a stream of indiscreet questions.

They ranged from my business to my father's immense success in London. From Hunt's war record to his plans for the future, to the nature of his relationship toward me. The latter stressing the possibility of romantic developments so embarrassingly that, in sheer self-defense, I decided to divert the little courtesier's curiosity by asking him a few questions in my turn.

"I saw you talk with Mrs. Knight at my reception," I told him when he was temporarily silenced by a big bite of caviar. "Do you know her well?"

"She swallowed the bite with a gulp. 'Mrs. Knight? Mals oui, Mrs. Knight!' he said in a way that made me think he hadn't quite caught the name at first. 'But certainly I know her well. She has been my customer for years.'

"Then it's no wonder she's so marvelously well dressed," I flattered him. "By the way, I only met her recently. Is she a widow or a divorcee?"

Polly put down the glass he was raising to his lips. "Mademoiselle Applebee! What a very indiscreet question!" he reproached me. "Do you not realize that a courtesier is like a father confessor or a physician? I never disclose the private affairs of my clients."

I threw a quick glance at Hunt, whose eyes had approved my inquiry about Brenda Knight before, and he came to my rescue promptly.

"Of course you don't," he applauded. "It would be a grave breach of confidence."

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

IT is probable that this day may suddenly bring forth a surprising opportunity for accomplishing the spectacular or the unforeseen, which may have a radical influence upon the life, its future status and well-being. This swinging wide to fresh fields of exceptional achievement may come through channels of communication, messages, or summons from those in high places.

However, there is much at stake, with funds, assets and credit risked. But skill, originality, new tactics, forsaking old ways and means, forsaking by initiative, determined effort and enterprise, should win out against heavy odds.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be suddenly confronted by a welcome opportunity to accomplish long-cherished hopes and wishes, particularly in the way of putting over original ideas and well-organized propositions, far-reaching in their effect and final denouement.

BOARD MAY FAIL TO MEET APRIL QUOTA IN DRAFT

Shortage Of Men Eligible For Induction Into Service Revealed

Pickaway county will likely be unable to meet its call for draftees during April.

This was disclosed Tuesday by the County Selective Service Board. Board officials said they were prohibited from divulging the number they have been asked to call to service in April.

The situation in Pickaway county exists generally throughout Ohio. State Selective Service headquarters disclosed that plans call for drafting 6,000 men in Ohio during April but that the state will probably be unable to meet that call.

Ohio has averaged approximately 2,000 men a month for the past year, including both inductions and enlistments for which local boards receive credit.

The 6,000 April call is more than twice the normal call because of the shortages developed during the past year, State Selective Service spokesmen said. The national call for April is 125,000.

Limited service men who are non-fathers and are between the ages of 18 and 26 provide the only reservoir from which men can be drafted, the State Selective Service officials explained. Induction of approximately 3,000 youths has been postponed because they attend colleges or high schools.

Officials of the local draft board said they have a few 18-year-olds not attending school who can be called to service but they explained that the call must under existing regulations be restricted to men under the age of 26 who are not attending college or high school.

MEN AND WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Capt. Hildeburn R. Martin, Jr., of the Marine Corps, has left Circleville for the Naval Training Station at Dallas, Tex., after spending a three-month leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hildeburn Martin, West Mill street. As battery commander for the 18th Anti-Aircraft Division he served 21 months overseas and received a citation before returning home. The citation, recommending a commendation ribbon, was issued by Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commanding the Fleet Marine Forces in the Pacific. The citation says it is for "excellent service in the line of his profession while serving in a Marine Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion from July 15, 1943 to September 1, 1945. Capt. Martin served as battery commander in the light anti-aircraft group, and performed his duties in a meritorious and efficient manner. The excellent performance of his battery during this period was a direct reflection on his ability to organize and train an anti-aircraft unit. His excellent knowledge of the 40 mm. gun and its fire control equipment and his ability to impart this knowledge to enlisted personnel was of particular value. His conduct and devotion to duty throughout were in keeping with the highest traditions of the U. S. Naval Service."

Capt. Martin's brother, Stuart Martin, recently received his discharge in Tokyo and now is working as a civilian for the U. S. Civil Service in Japan.

Pfc. Ernest Irvin, Williamsport, was discharged from the Army, March 28, according to an official notification issued from Camp Atterbury, Ind.

Discharge from the Army of Cpl. Murrell J. Heffner, Route 1, Amanda, March 28, has been officially announced from Camp Atterbury, Ind.

BOGGS URGES FATS BE SAVED

Greater Conservation Of Waste Products Needed To Relieve Shortage

John G. Boggs, County committeeman of the A. A. A. called for additional efforts on the part of Pickaway County housewives in the conservation of fats and oils. Mr. Boggs said that America is committed to furnish 365,000 tons of these products to famine areas within the next three months.

He pointed out that a savings of one teaspoon of fat per day for every man, woman and child in America would result in a total savings of one million pounds daily.

Seven methods of fats and oils conservation listed by Mr. Boggs are:

Make better use of meat drippings for cooking; don't use as much for seasoning, gravies, etc; save and re-use fats and oils for cooking purposes; render excess fats on meats and save bacon grease for cooking purposes; sal-

USE OF LIME, FERTILIZER IS SAID PROFITABLE

COLUMBUS, April 8—Ohio farmers today were advised that high wheat and corn prices make applications of lime and fertilizer a profitable investment. Rural economists at Ohio State University pointed out that 35 vage all fats that cannot be re-used and turn them in to the butcher or grocer; go easy with the oils and salad dressings; serve fewer fried foods.

"If each Ohio family would just save a little in the next few months," Mr. Boggs said, "they would save a lot of people from a lot of hunger."

Music Is Discussed At Monday Club Meeting

Mrs. Defenbaugh Is Speaker; Officers Approved

Mrs. Robert Adkins, president, was in charge of the business meeting when members of the Monday Club met in the Trustees Room at Memorial Hall, Monday night, at which time members voted to change the time of meeting from 7:30 to 8 o'clock and to revise the constitution accordingly.

The slate of officers for the coming year was recommended and approved. Mrs. T. L. Huston, president; Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, first vice-president; Mrs. Melvin Kiger, second vice-president; Mrs. G. H. Adkins, recording secretary; Mrs. Carl Kennedy, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Cleon Webb, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Clark Will, and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, program committee; Mrs. Anna Chandler, historian; Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, accompanist; Mrs. Hulse Hays, member-at-large.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh presented a paper entitled "Accent on Contemporary Composers of Light Music." Mrs. Defenbaugh said, "The art of music during the past fifty years has undergone a violent upheaval. Audiences everywhere have shown signs of bewilderment at the variety of styles and tendencies that have combined under the name of modern music. Speaking generally the lay listener has remained antagonistic, confused or merely indifferent to the major creations of the newer composers."

Mrs. Defenbaugh gave a brief sketch of the lives and works of Rudolf Friml, Sigmund Romberg, and Victor Herbert, Europe born composers who were not writers of jazz. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter sang Friml's "Katinka" and "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart" from "Firefly"; and Miss Rosemary Schreiner sang Herbert's "A Kiss in the Dark" from "Orange Blossoms" and Romberg's "Romance" from "The Desert Song".

Vincent Youmans and Jerome Kern, two American composers were discussed after which Mrs. Clark Will rendered Youman's ever popular, "Through the Years" from the musical of the same name. Mrs. Martin Cromley then played the piano solo "Deep Purple", a very modern selection by the composer Peter de Rose.

The works of Darius Milhaud, a French composer, was illustrated by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke and Mrs. T. L. Huston in a two piano number, "Scaramouche", a suite of three numbers.

Mrs. Defenbaugh discussed many other prominent composers and also commended Alec Templeton, whose blindness at birth, seems not to have handicapped him at all as a musician. He is well known for his original musical satire.

She pointed out that there can be little question but that the present world crisis will have a far reaching influence on the music of our times. Composers who are witnessing first hand the conflagration about them, composers who have been uprooted from their native soil and transplanted permanently into a new and foreign setting—these are not likely to speak the same musical language or voice the same ideas tomorrow as they did in less perilous times. Thus it seems more than probable that 1939 marked the end of our epoch in modern music. What will come in the future no one can say. But we can look at the past. This seems an appropriate time in which to review what has been achieved by the modern composer, to evaluate what our time has contributed to the heritage of music.

Jimmy James Band To Be Featured At Thursday Dance

Jimmy James and his 14 piece orchestra, sponsored by the Sigma Phi Gamma sorority, will play for a dance at the Memorial Hall Thursday evening from 9 to 1. Jimmy James has recently been released from the army where he was musical director of the famous "Jeep Show", which was the Army's answer to the need for top flight entertainment for front line troops. The "Jeep Show" units did as many as 10 to 12 shows a day, right up to within 400 yards of the fox holes. For this purpose, Jimmy welded together many good units, ranging from a 19 piece swing band to a four piece hill-billy unit.

James was born in Chillicothe and started as a drummer for the Winter Garden orchestra. He later played with some of the best bands in the country, such as, Hal Kemp, Horace Heidt, Henry Busse before he formed his own orchestra.

Miss Betty Chapel will be the featured vocalist, Thursday evening, and will add to the entertainment. The sorority announces dress for the occasion will be optional.

MRS. KING IS HONOR GUEST AT COUNCIL MEET

The 46 annual state council of the Ohio Daughters of 1812 is meeting for a three day convention which began Monday at the Deshler Wallick Hotel, Columbus. Delegates from 13 chapters will attend.

Mrs. Orion King, West High street, is one of the honorary state presidents who will be honored at a dinner Tuesday evening. Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Washington township, who is past state registrar of the organization, and Mrs. Roy Hardin, Williamsport, president of the Major John Boggs chapter, will also attend the convention.

The state dinner to be held Tuesday evening will mark the opening session of the council and will be preceded by a procession in which Mrs. William O. Johnson, the state president, the honorary state presidents and other officers will walk.

Guest speaker at the dinner will be Dr. H. R. Cotterman of the department of education at Capital University, Columbus, who will talk on the topic, "Let Us Have Peace." State officers will give reports.

In a service of remembrance Wednesday at 11 a. m., personal tributes will be paid to deceased members. The Mary Bidwell Gavel will be presented to the chapter having the largest attendance at the meeting. The honorary state presidents will be special guests.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Black, and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Defenbaugh, Circleville township, have returned after spending the winter in Fort Myers, Florida.

'Outlaws' Topic At Lenten Service

"The Great and Little Outlaws," a discourse dealing with the two brigands crucified on the right and left of Christ, is the theme of the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy's Easter tide talk for Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian church.

Miss Anne Moeller will sing a soprano solo titled "Trees" by Kilmer, the children's choir will render the selection, "O Master of the Loving Heart," and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke will be at the organ console.

Members and friends of the Presbyterian Church fellowship are given a cordial invitation to come and worship. The service Wednesday night will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Coral Faith Bowsher, Laurelville, was a Sunday guest at the home of Miss Marvene Koch, Whisler.

Mrs. Harry Heffner, East Union street, left Tuesday for Ann Arbor, Michigan, where she will visit her son, William.

BEATING THE LOBBIES

THERE is one point where private enterprise is badly needed. That is in opposing the big and highly paid lobbies which so often bring pressure for interests opposed to those of the private citizen. What can one citizen do against a powerful pressure group? He can write to his Senator and Representative.

Let him take pen in hand and tell his duly elected Congressman what he wants. The congressman, if he wants to be re-elected, will consider seriously the letters and postcards of private citizens. He is not likely to change a well-thought-out plan of action for one crackpot idea. But he will listen to what the simple citizen has to say. If it makes sense, and if other citizens say the same thing, the representative will give it real attention.

Frequently the congressman has to make up his mind on difficult questions without knowing what his folks back home really want. And he might be very much surprised to know the grassroots attitude on pork barrel questions. Sometimes constituents would much prefer sensible decisions to hunks of pork.

The ordinary citizen is the man with the last word. He has the vote. It is up to him to learn about public questions of importance, to think about them, and to make his desires plainly known at Washington—not by signing papers he knows nothing about, but by writing his own short letter. A postcard will do.

MORE SEWING

HOME dressmaking is hitting an all-time high this spring, after a steady increase through the last few years. Pattern sales and yard goods sales are booming, and good sewing teachers have women waiting to get into their classes.

There always was a financial gain in sewing at home, and the scarcities and poor materials of wartime accentuated the advantages. The new note is the great demand for professional training. Women making their own clothes today are not willing to improvise uncertainly by themselves. They would rather learn from an expert and be sure of the results.

Man's still ahead of Nature in destructive power. Strikes cost more than floods. Man can do more harm just by doing nothing than Nature can by her darndest. War's a still better example. World War I cost $100,000,000,000 to start with, more than all the fires and earthquakes and floods in history. With the opening up of World War II Nature learned more than ever what a piker she is.

With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, April 2—Having been around when he was a freshman in the political game, I thought it was time I checked up on Senator Claghorn now that he is a seasoned campaigner. He looked a bit dog-eared.

"Ah'm right tired, son—beat, that is," he acknowledged. "Between legislatin' and helpin' out Squire Allen on his radio show and answerin' the correspondence from my constituents, ah'm plumb tuckered. Ah mean ah'm so all-fired tired that . . ."

The senator had a fistful of mail at the time and while he held himself spellbound with a windy recital of his condition, I took the liberty of going through some of the letters to see how the folks back home felt about him. There was one small note of complaint among the avalanche of praise for his steadfast stand against anything having the taint of the Nawth. For once he had tripped over his phobia. A couple of writers were chiding him for stating last week that there is no such place as Nawth Cahlina; that so far as he's concerned it is upper South Cahlina.

However, a female fifth-grader of Winston-Salem, N. C., wrote that she and her chums were willing to accept the senator's revision, and added:

"If you don't mind, I would like to have your picture to frame. I would gladly take down Van Johnson for you."

Obviously the girl has never seen a likeness of the senator. She addressed her letter to "Senator Clang Horne" and maybe she's right.

A letter on the stationery of the city of Houston, Texas, demanded some quick action from the senator as follows:

"I heard the goose flying over last night—going north, my pet, going north. Can't you do something about this??? Well, if you can't, I'll remember you come next election, if you get what I mean."

A woman correspondent from Oak Ridge, Tenn., weighed in with these script suggestions for the radio show:

"The senator might say: 'Never looked out my porthole at all when I was on that European cruise for fear I'd see those cussed northern lights.' Or: 'I like Santa Claus, but I pity the poor guy. The housing shortage must be awful if he has to live at the North Pole.' OR: 'You never hear me claim to be a true blue southerner because the only colors I've a hankering for are gray, scarlett and rhett. That's a pun, son.'"

A letter from Osprey, Fla., sought to give the senator a lesson in southern history in the matter of the civil war.

"Never say 'civil war,' the cor-

A MINISTER LOOKS AT THE NEWS

"RUSSIA—A PROBLEM OR AN OPPORTUNITY"

By The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy

SEVERAL years ago, while attending theological seminary in Chicago, I assumed the student pastorate over a little Community Church in southern Wisconsin. Even though there was a Russian Orthodox Church in the community, nevertheless to our own Church School came the children of a Russian family.

To this day I cannot spell their last name, but I did learn to pronounce it. How I loved it when their turn came around, as it did often in that tiny congregation, for this Russian family to entertain me at Sunday dinner. Not only was the cooking excellent and varied, but a wholesome atmosphere pervaded the home just as a delicious aroma is wafted from a kitchen.

The Sunday school lesson and the sermon were freely and frankly (and kindly) discussed, questions asked and honest attempts made to answer them. But what struck me most forcibly in this sincerely Christian home, was the fact that the mother, a large, good-humored, typical peasant woman, not very long out of Russia, was learning the English alphabet. And she was having a difficult time of it, much to the delight of her children and to her own consternation, especially when they affectionately teased her in my presence.

It has been a long time since I last visited in that home and was treated and respected as if I had been a member of the family. But it would be impossible and unforfeivable were I ever to forget their respectful, though highly congenial hospitality.

I cannot boast of many friends of foreign blood and background, especially those of Russian lineage. But one does not have to know personally every individual of a country in order to understand that nation as a whole.

Now, this is indeed a very general statement and should be accepted as such. But its fundamental thesis holds good. During our war with Japan, hosts of people said, with heated emphasis and frozen hearts, "to hell with the Japanese!" and at the same time were quite unaware, and probably glad of it, that many, many Christians in Japan deeply lamented their country's blunders. Chief of these Christians is Kagawa, one of the noblest of all followers of Christ.

Our worst trouble, in this respect, is our apparent willingness to look for the worst people in a country and then think that every one else is like them. Whereas, if we looked first at someone such as Kagawa, we might come to appraise his countrymen in a far different light. And a personal friendship, such as that which I enjoyed with my Russian family, might be just the proper means to take.

But to return to our subject. It is true that no dominant Christian figure has emerged from the ravaged ruin that describes much of Russia—at least, not yet. After all, it has been some time since the Church has had a voice in the land of the Soviets. Christ hasn't been forgotten, but He has been the "Christ of the Padlocked Lips."

And yet it would be both foolish and blind on our part were we to despair of a great Christian leader's emerging from this huge European-Asiatic country. For PLAYING a No Trump game contract, the declarer often should concentrate on protecting himself against some one single greatest danger, and that is usually the opposition's long suit. Keeping one particular defender out of the lead is sometimes the only way to safeguard himself. Every resource should be exhausted first before attempting any play which, if it fails, would give that defender the lead.

Only two of the North-South pairs in a big duplicate reached that incorrect contract of 3-No Trumps, all of the others getting to the right spot of 4-Hearts and making an extra trick for a tie at top score. These No Trump declarers were therefore playing only to see who would avoid getting bottom score, and one of them made it. The spade 5 was led at both of those tables, the Q going on and the A winning. One of those Souths lazily tackled the easiest course, finessing the heart

J to the K and then suffering the loss of four spade tricks.

The other declarer saw, after the first trick, that he was in no danger if East was kept out of the lead, and hence prevented from leading through the spade 5. He decided he would first try to pick up seven tricks in the minors before risking any heart finesse—and to do it without ever losing any trick except to West. Embarking on this, he scored the diamond K and A, then led the club 3. When East played the 8, he put on the 9 and led West win.

Sizing up spades correctly, West led his heart 4, hoping South would finesse and get East in the lead. But South used the heart A, and then tried for his even break of both minors. He scored the diamond K and club 7, making his ninth trick, then lost the rest. Notice that he still could have played hearts after that if West held the K, to assure his game.

DIET AND HEALTH

Building Blocks of The Body

By HERMAN N. SUNDBEN, M.D.

PROTEINS are the very stuff of life.

These complex substances might be called the building blocks of the body since they enter into the composition of every cell. They are material from which new tissues are made and worn-out cells rebuilt.

Thus, it is doubly important that the mother-to-be get plenty of proteins. On this, her own well-being and that of her unborn child depend. Yet, a number of studies of the diets of pregnant women show that many do not get an adequate amount of protein.

Pregnancy Diet

Ruth M. Leverton and Thelma J. McMillan of Lincoln, Nebraska, carried out a study of the effectiveness of a simple diet plan which would make sure that the pregnant woman would get all of the protein she needed, particularly if she were suffering from anemia or lack of coloring in the blood. The simple recommendation which they made was that the pregnant woman should eat plenty of meat, that is, have a generous serving of meat at least twice a day.

Meat supplies plenty of protein and the proteins in meat furnish all of the essential amino acids. Proteins are made up of these amino acids and it has been found that ten of them are necessary for growth and the normal repair of tissue.

Furthermore, by eating two generous servings of meat twice a day, sufficient protein is supplied without crowding out of the diet other important foods such as eggs, vegetables, fruits, wholegrain cereals and butter.

Vitamins and Minerals

Meat contains other elements necessary for keeping the diet well-balanced, such as vitamins and minerals. It has a good appeal to the appetite. There is a widespread notion that it is not a good thing for women to eat much meat during pregnancy but the study which has been carried out proves that this is wrong.

The women studied were under 33 years of age. In addition to the regular diet and the use of meat, the majority of the women were receiving a preparation supplying vitamins A and D and calcium phosphate. For each woman who received this type of diet, another was chosen who had a similar diet without the extra meat, but instead a capsule supplying vitamin B-complex. Still another group equal in number received no supplement to the diet.

More Coloring

It was found that the women who received the meat had more coloring in the blood and a larger number of red blood cells and had better success in nursing their babies than the women who received the B-complex supplement or those who received no supplement at all. Furthermore, they suffered less often from edema or swelling of the tissues.

Hence, it is concluded that recommending to pregnant women that they increase the amount of protein in their diets is helpful in keeping up the coloring and red cells in the blood, avoiding edema and helping in breast feeding.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. L. B.: Does missing a monthly period always denote pregnancy?

Answer: Missing a monthly period does not always denote pregnancy. It is possible that there is some glandular disturbance which is responsible for your failure to menstruate. However, in order to be sure, a thorough and complete examination by the doctor is necessary. It is found there is a glandular deficiency, treatment with glandular extracts may be of help. I suggest that you consult a specialist in disorders of this type.

SYNOPSIS

Jane Applebee, literary agent, regrets having invited her sister, Neal Tarrant, the glamorous actress, to share her New York apartment. Neal always took what she wanted, and in this instance she was no exception. Neal's beau, Deane Kennard, rivaling the country cousin of her other sister, Dita Pearce, Jane was intrigued by Mrs. Brenda Knight, an attractive stranger who had lost her way and spent the night there. She had been purchased completely furnished and had been given the room, but she had no money to pay for it. During the night Jane found Brenda Knight wandering about in the unfurnished room. On Wednesday Jane gave a reception for her most important author and house guest, Margot Chase.

Among the guests were Dr. Hunt Berwick, amateur criminologist and her buddy of Dita's husband, Dick; Brenda Knight, and Mr. Polly Woodford, famous courtier who lived across the hall. Neal arrived with a stream of admirers including Deane Kennard and Toni Valente, wealthy South American. Margot was infuriated when the guests deserted her to pay homage to Neal, and deliberately embarrassed Deane and Hunt, each of whom had not been on a previous occasion, by declaring that she had known them before. Later that evening she asked Jane if she might have the apartment to herself on Friday afternoon. Jane suspected a man in the picture when Margot confided she was greatly worried about something. On Thursday before Neal left for her Boston opening (accompanied by Deane and Toni) she gave Jane one of the huge pillows from her room because its rose color clashed with her hair. The apartment was empty when Jane arrived home late Friday afternoon, but in the hallway used by Margot and her unknown guest, Jane found the remnants of Deane's initiated cigarette. Fearing Hunt Berwick, who had come to take Margot and Jane to dinner, would see them, Jane threw the tell-tale butts down the incinerator. Jane and Hunt, perched by Margot's continued absence, got out to dinner. Jane is telling the story.

CHAPTER TEN

BEFORE WE rang Polly Woodford's bell that evening, at nine-thirty sharp, I went into my apartment to see if Margot had returned in the meantime.

But apparently she had not. At least there was no sign of her in her room or elsewhere. And so I shrugged off the puzzle and went back to the foyer, where Hunt Berwick was waiting for me.

He was standing at one of the consoles there, fingering a large gray envelope, and asked the moment he saw me, "Was this here when we left? It's addressed to Mrs. Ingalls and delivered by hand. No stamp."

"I don't know," I told him. "All I can say is, I hadn't noticed it and it's one more mystery."

This mystery was soon to be cleared, however.

"What a pity, what a pity! When I'd arranged for my star mannequin to model only gowns created for her!" Polly twittered regretfully when I told him of Margot's disappearance. "How could she do that to me! After I put a note into your foyer telling her about it!"

"YOU put the note in my foyer?"

"A note in a gray envelope?" Hunt and I blurted out simultaneously.

Polly cocked his head and twittered—apologetically, this time. His twitter was graded all through the scale to express various emotions. "Mais oui, I always use gray stationery. And I hope you will forgive my entering your home without permission, Mademoiselle Applebee. But—when I found the door open—"

"You found my front door open?" I asked incredulously.

"A little bit," Polly showed a distance of half an inch between two fingers. "The departing visitor evidently hadn't quite closed it."

"What departing visitor?" Hunt asked abruptly.

Polly shrugged. "A gentleman. To say more would be indiscreet, no?"

"Not when the gentleman was leaving Miss Applebee's apartment," Hunt pointed out dryly. Polly's antics registered embarrassment. "That is true, in a way. But, after all, who I thought it was beside the point. All I saw clearly was a man in a light gray suit sinking out of sight in the elevator, when I came out to deliver the note. I concluded he came from Miss Applebee's apartment because there was no other place to come from and—"

He stopped, cocked his head and blinked, a bit maliciously, I thought. "He was about your height, Dr. Berwick. And I notice your hat is light gray also. So—it actually could have been you."

"It could, but it wasn't," Hunt told him briefly.

"Of course not. I just meant to illustrate my predicament," Polly agreed. And then went on: "When I found the door ajar I naturally imagined he had left it open and went in. But I rang the bell first. Word of honor, I did."

I couldn't understand it. If he had rung the bell, Margot would have heard and answered it.

And then a simple explanation occurred to me and I cut into the little courtier's effusions excitedly: "Of course, that's it! I bet Margot Ingalls was in the elevator, too, and you didn't see her. Mr. Woodford?"

Polly stopped talking, looked reflective, and then agreed, "C'est ça! Clever of you to think of it, Mademoiselle. Without a doubt she was in the elevator, hidden behind her escort."

And then he dropped the subject and ushered us into his apartment. It was, without exception, the most beautiful I'd ever been in, and so original, only the imagination of a near-genius could have dreamed it up.

The whole rear of the house had been thrown into one enormous room which could be subdivided into three by means of decorative sliding walls—with such unsightly necessities as the kitchen and bathroom tucked away to both sides of the foyer.

The sliding walls looked like rich draperies when closed, hanging in majestic golden folds ornamented with a brilliant design of fantastic flowers and birds, and closed or half open, were a marvelous background for the equally rich and exotic furniture Polly had gathered in his home, each piece as much of a special creation as his beloved gowns.

Tonight the wall that ordinarily shut off his sleeping quarters served as a backdrop for his fashion show. And the splendor of it—one gorgeously gowned mannequin after the other emerging from between the shimmering folds, to the accompaniment of hidden music and a running patter of commentary from Polly—really deserved a larger audience than just Hunt and me. And a more appreciative one.

I can't, of course, definitely judge Hunt's reaction to the beauties of feminine apparel. But I know that I, who should have been in raptures over Polly's superb gowns, somehow was not.

The problem of Margot's strange absence, and my discovery that Deane, presumably in Boston with Neal, had been the mystery man of the afternoon, made me unable to concentrate on anything else, and I was honestly glad when the last "creation" had vanished from view and we were sitting at a perfectly appointed supper table in the dining room end of the apartment.

Here again Polly had given his originality full play.

A Chinese houseman served us caviar, large, gray pearls of it heaped high in a magnificent silver bowl, accompanied by a wonderful old Chateau Yquem.

"From the Maison Gourmet," our host explained. "Not like the pre-war unsalted by any means, but the best there is now. They have some method of unsalting it."

I am as a rule not overfond of Caviar. But I can't help myself. I enjoyed Polly's. And I enjoyed even more his delight in it. The contents of the silver bowl dwindled, vanished, were replenished and dwindled again, as Polly kept eating as if to establish a record. Which, however, didn't prevent him from chattering like a magpie and playing Hunt and me with a stream of indiscreet questions.

They ranged from my business to my father's immense success in London. From Hunt's war record to his plans for the future, to the nature of his relationship to me. The latter stressing the possibility of romantic developments so embarrassingly that, in sheer self-defense, I decided to divert the little courtier's curiosity by asking him a few questions in my turn.

"I saw you talk with Mrs. Knight at my reception," I told him when he was temporarily silenced by a big bite of caviar. "Do you know her well?"

He swallowed the bite with a gulp. "Mrs. Knight? Mais oui, Mrs. Knight!" he said in a way that made me think he hadn't quite caught the name at first. "But certainly I know her well. She has been my customer for years."

"Then it's no wonder she's so marvelously well dressed," I flattered him. "By the way, I only met her recently. Is she a widow or a divorcee?"

Polly put down the glass he was raising to his lips. "Mademoiselle Applebee! What a very indiscreet question!" he reproached me. "Do you not realize that a courtier is like a father confessor or a physician? I never disclose the private affairs of my clients."

I threw a quick glance at Hunt, whose eyes had approved my inquiry about Brenda Knight before, and he came to my rescue promptly.

"Of course you don't," he applauded. "It would be a grave breach of confidence."

Music Is Discussed At Monday Club Meeting

Mrs. Defenbaugh Is Speaker; Officers Approved

Mrs. Robert Adkins, president, was in charge of the business meeting when members of the Monday Club met in the Trustees Room at Memorial Hall, Monday night, at which time members voted to change the time of meeting from 7:30 to 8 o'clock and to revise the constitution accordingly. The slate of officers for the coming year was recommended and approved. Mrs. T. L. Huston, president; Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, first vice-president; Mrs. Melvin Kiger, second vice-president; Mrs. G. H. Adkins, recording secretary; Mrs. Carl Kennedy, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Cleon Webb, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Clark Will, and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, program committee; Mrs. Anna Chandler, historian; Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, accompanist; Mrs. Hulse Hays, member-at-large.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh presented a paper entitled "Accent on Contemporary Composers of Light Music." Mrs. Defenbaugh said, "The art of music during the past fifty years has undergone a violent upheaval. Audiences everywhere have shown signs of bewilderment at the variety of styles and tendencies that have combined under the name of modern music. Speaking generally the lay listener has remained antagonistic, confused or merely indifferent to the major creations of the newer composers."

Mrs. Defenbaugh gave a brief sketch of the lives and works of Rudolf Friml, Sigmund Romberg, and Victor Herbert, Europe born composers who were not writers of jazz. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter sang Friml's "Katinka" from the musical "Katinka" and "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart" from "Firefly"; and Miss Rosemary Schreiner sang Herbert's "A Kiss in the Dark" from "Orange Blossoms" and Romberg's "Romance" from "The Desert Song".

Vincent Youmans and Jerome Kern, two American composers were discussed after which Mrs. Clark Will rendered Youman's ever popular, "Through the Years" from the musical of the same name. Mrs. Martin Cromley then played the piano solo "Deep Purple", a very modern selection by the composer Peter de Rose.

The works of Darius Milhand, a French composer, was illustrated by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke and Mrs. T. L. Huston in a two piano number, "Saramouche", a suite of three numbers.

Mrs. Defenbaugh discussed many other prominent composers and also commended Alec Templeton, whose blindness at birth, seems not to have handicapped him at all as a musician. He is well known for his original musical satire.

She pointed out that there can be little question but that the present world crisis will have a far reaching influence on the music of our times. Composers who are witnessing first hand the conflagration about them, composers who have been uprooted from their native soil and transplanted permanently into a new and foreign setting—these are not likely to speak the same musical language or voice the same ideas tomorrow as they did in less perilous times. Thus it seems more than probable that 1939 marked the end of our epoch in modern music. What will come in the future no one can say. But we can look at the past. This seems an appropriate time in which to review what has been achieved by the modern composer, to evaluate what our time has contributed to the heritage of music.

SEVEN PLEDGED AT MEETING OF BETA CHAPTER

The seven girls who were pledged to the Beta Kappa chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma national sorority at a meeting in the club rooms Monday night, include Miss Norma Monna, Mrs. John McGill, and Mrs. Stanley Cline; food, Mrs. Harold Pontius, Mrs. William Leist, and Miss Elizabeth Hilyard.

At the close of the business meeting games were enjoyed with prizes awarded to Mrs. Edgar McClure, Miss Elma Raines, and Miss Wilmina Phebus.

Refreshments were served by the hostess who was assisted by Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Mrs. George Gerhardt, Miss Eloise Hilyard and Miss Sprague.

Jean Coffland, Miss Betty Sapp, Mrs. Edward Ebert, Mrs. George Speakman, Mrs. Peggy Shipp, Mrs. Gene Barthelmas, and Miss Barbara Helwagen.

Members of the sorority who were in charge of the pledging ceremony were Miss Betty Clifton, Miss Regina Thornton, and Mrs. Leland Siegwald. Following the pledging service, Mrs. David Glick, pledge mistress, gave instructions to the girls. Music for the occasion was furnished by Mrs. John Goodchild and Miss Barbara Caskey.

A short business meeting was held to complete plans for the dance, featuring Jimmy James and his orchestra, which will be held in the Memorial Hall Thursday night. The sorority is sponsoring this affair.

The next meeting will be held April 10, in the sorority rooms.

Mrs. John J. Corbett, Grosse Point, is a guest at the home of Mrs. J. I. Smith Sr., East Union street.

Jimmy James Band To Be Featured At Thursday Dance

Jimmy James and his 14 piece orchestra, sponsored by the Sigma Phi Gamma sorority, will play for a dance at the Memorial Hall Thursday evening from 9 to 1. Jimmy James has recently been released from the army where he was musical director of the famous "Jeep Show", which was the Army's answer to the need for top flight entertainment for front line troops. The "Jeep Show" units did as many as 10 to 12 shows a day, right up to within 400 yards of the fox holes. For this purpose, Jimmy welded together many good units, ranging from a 19 piece swing band to a four piece hill-billy unit.

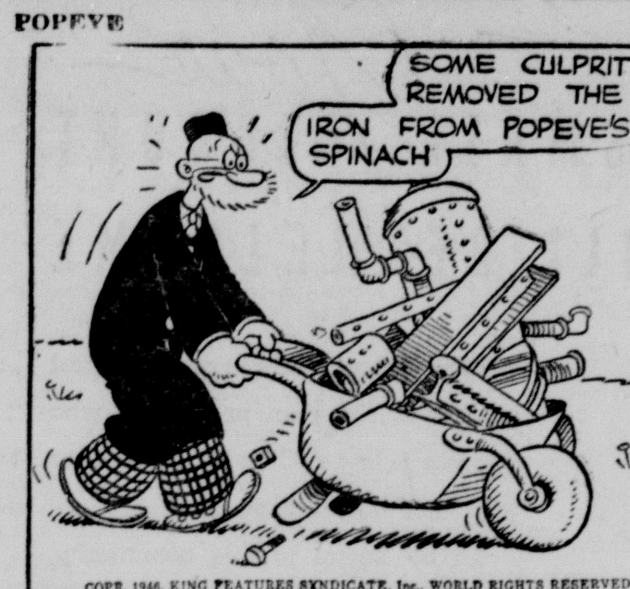

James was born in Chillicothe and started as a drummer for the Winter Garden orchestra. He later played with some of the best bands in the country, such as, Hal Kemp, Horace Heidt, Henry Busse before he formed his own orchestra.

Miss Betty Chapel will be the featured vocalist, Thursday evening, and will add to the entertainment. The sorority announces dress for the occasion will be optional.

YEAR ROUND SANTA
A night attendant in the Veter-ans' Hospital at Waco, Texas, who plays Santa Claus all the year 'round to the poor kids of that city, receives Morton Downey's "Big, Little American" tribute on the popular tenor's broadcast, Wednes-day, 12:15 p. m. (EST). "Santa Claus" is A. C. McAdams, retired Fed-eral Reserve Bank teller, who devotes all his spare time, 12 months in the year, to repairing broken toys and playthings, without charge, for Waco youngsters who have no money to pay for such service. Mac, as he's known to practically all of Waco, is an im-portant cog in the "toy chest" con-ducted by Kiwanians of the Texas community, using his nimble fin-gers to patch up hundreds of bat-tered toys collected throughout the city and distributed to the under-privileged at Christmas time. This work, too, is done voluntarily even though the Kiwanis Club, time and again, has tried to offer McAdams payment for his valuable con-tribution to the project. Each time he refuses, and the reason, he says, is that he's never forgotten a kindly, grey-haired old man who, years ago when Mac was a young-

It is usually out of lands where political tyranny is known that our greatest saints and martyrs have arisen: Jesus out of Rome-dominated Palestine; Niemoller out of Hitler-and-Nazi-dominated Germany; Kagawa out of the land where the Rising Sun was made even a bloodier hue by the deep gashes thrust in the side of Japan's common man by his military overlords.

Talk is terribly cheap, but true understanding costs. During the past weeks it seems as if, almost without exception, the average American was blowing off his mouth as readily and as rapidly as my little boy blows soap bubbles. We have bandied about our opinions, but have not bothered to trace the truth! The result has been that we were sunk in the doldrums of despair, only to be escalated to the heights by a simple, common-sense statement from a truly simple man.

We are a people driven by our emotions, but who refuse to be propelled by our minds. And the horrible truth is that emotions soon give out, while the mind forges on and on.

What are we, then, to do about Russia? There is a choice presented to us: We may either look upon Russia as a monstrous problem, or we may see her as the greatest opportunity our people have ever had presented to them.

With a clear eye we can see that there are but two countries in our world of today that have the possibilities for reconstruction: Russia and the United States. According to Dr. E. Stanley Jones, who recently visited Russia, this is what many of her people think of democracy: "We are the inheritors of democracy. You began it and then grew afraid of it. You tried to confine it to the political, we took it and applied it to the social and economic. So we took the torch from your hand."

"And," continues Stanley Jones, "the answer to that cannot be a verbal retort; it must be a vital reply—a demonstration."

Therefore, we must not see Russia as a problem, but view her in the light of the opportunity she gives us to make of democracy more than a "verbal retort." It is for every American not only to believe in and confess his belief in the workings of democracy, but to demonstrate it!

There are three hopeful things we may and must show Russia: First, a ruling concept, that is, faith in man, based on a faith in God; second, a central expression of the genius of America's life, "E pluribus unum"—"out of the many one"; and a cleansing principle and power working within her life—Christ.

Russia needs more than a faith based on humanism. She needs a larger faith that reaches out to Jesus Christ. Russia has the seeds of democracy in her; she does have "E pluribus unum," but not with the same depth as America and not with the same rootage in her national history.

Richard E. Lauterbach, in his recent book, "These Are the Russians," gives us a marvelous picture of the Russia of our day. "He is a prodigious adolescent, a big boy coming up fast. Many of his character traits are those of the wonderful raw-boned adolescent successfully discovering himself: wonderful leader principle; pride in material prowess; muscle-flexing; destiny - gripped; lavish, at times vainglorious, hospitality at all times; fierce loves and hates; terrific concern and sensitivity over what others think of him; boundless organized energy; limitless belief in himself; daring gambles for all or nothing; intolerance for critics and advisers; all for teamwork with the home crowd yet jealously independent from the gang across the river; quickness to condemn anyone who fails; liking fun fast and rompy; equalitarian idealism; easy racial assimilation; mad about mechanics; love of uniforms and display; strong for external disciplines bred of the barracks; emotional, amiable but ready to look out for himself, and to do without religion very nicely."

With the same clear eye that can see Russia and the United States as the only two nations who today have the possibilities for reconstruction, let us look at each and at both again. America embodies individualism at its best, and Russia represents collectivism at its best. Two great systems face each other. And they will face each other some day in mortal combat as to which will master the world, unless they both decide to give in and change and form a new kind of man—a world co-operative man.

Each country by itself is incomplete. A combination of individualism and collectivism will give us what we need. Suggests E. Stanley

ABC EXECUTIVES OPEN MEETING

Schwogler Family Fails To Place Among Leaders in Bowling Classic

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 2—Sixty directors and executive committee of the American Bowling Congress opened a three-day executive meeting today to consider 35 amendments to be presented at Friday's general meeting.

The most important proposal is the upping of fees for the national tournament resulting in larger purses. A secretary also will be elected during the meeting and the site of the 1948 A. B. C. championships announced. The 1947 classic already has been awarded to Los Angeles.

Meanwhile on the alleys, eight more teams, including two from San Antonio, Tex., will attempt to knock the Hells of Milwaukee out of first place in the team division of the 43d A. B. C. championships tonight.

Bowling's famous Schwogler family of Madison, Wis., Tony, Connie and Mel, failed to crack the leaders during last night's firing. Tony "Pa" Schwogler, who won an A. B. C. title in 1909, scored 563, while Mel had 571 and Connie, who has been rolling at a 212 average in league competition, settled for 504. Connie, who sports a 203 average for 400 games in all-star competition, was expected to be a threat in the minor event rolling today.

Toledo, O., gained its first representation among the "high 10's" yesterday when John Reighard and Bill Damon hit 1,251 for ninth place in the doubles. Ron Buckles of St. Louis took 10th in the alleys with 1,867.

CIRCLEVILLE GIRLS HOLD KNOTHOLE TOURNAMENT TITLE

Circleville independents won the senior championship in the Knuthole tournament for girls at Columbus. The local girls grabbed the title by defeating Grandview 16-14 in the finals.

Grandview has won the title for the last three years.

The independents roster includes Mike Lutz, Ruth Ann Thomas and Lucille Redman, forwards; Biddy Reid, Eileen Maynard, Becky Reese and Peggy Arledge, guards.

Circleville Township Protests Abandonment Of School District

PETITION FILED WITH BOARD TO BLOCK PROGRAM

80 Per Cent Of Voters Ask District Be Retained In County Setup

Petitions formally protesting abandonment of the Circleville township school district were filed with the Pickaway county board of education and School Superintendent George D. McDowell said Tuesday the petitions have been sent to the State Department of Education at Columbus.

Following a meeting of the county school board on March 6, when action was taken to eliminate the township school district, it was widely reported that residents of the township would file petitions challenging the action.

Superintendent McDowell said that the petitions contained 45 signatures or approximately 80 per cent of the 57 eligible voters in Circleville township.

The filing of the protesting petitions, Superintendent McDowell asserted, automatically halts, temporarily, the abandonment of the township as a school district, and that a final decision in the controversy is expected to be given by the Ohio department of education.

At the March 6 session the members of the county school board, Superintendent McDowell explained, decided that abandonment of Circleville township as a school district was decided as mandatory under a new state law enacted by the General Assembly in 1946 and which became effective February 4, 1946.

Inasmuch as there were no schools in operation in the township outside of the city of Circleville, Superintendent McDowell said, the county school board had no alternative—under provisions of the new Ohio law—than to declare the township no longer a school district.

Because members of the county school board were somewhat dubious about the situation an opinion was sought from the office of the Ohio attorney general. The board then took action in accordance with the legal ruling obtained from that office. The ruling was that the township must be eliminated as a school district.

Inasmuch as children living in the rural sections of the township already are attending Circleville schools, Superintendent McDowell pointed out, the only effect of the elimination is that the township

HIGH RANKING PUPILS IN TEST ARE ANNOUNCED

22 Students Of County, City Schools Make Good Grades In Exams

Names of 22 Pickaway County high school seniors who attained the highest scores among 72 students who underwent a general scholarship test March 8 in the Circleville High school were announced Monday by County School Supt. George D. McDowell.

Certificates of recognition will be issued to the winners from the Ohio Department of Education at Columbus which computed the scores.

The examination required almost three hours and covered five subjects, history, English, mathematics, science, and reading. Each subject counted 60 points in the total of 300. The test was administered by a county committee composed of Supt. McDowell, chairman; J. Wray Henry, Circleville high school principal; Walter Harris, Ashville school superintendent; and Judson Lanman, Williamsport superintendent.

AMMER GIVEN CITATION FOR ARMY SERVICE

George Ammer, who served as official photographer for the Columbus Army Service Forces Depot during the war, has rejoined the staff of the Chillicothe Gazette, oldest newspaper in the U. S. west of the Alleghenies, the paper has announced. Ammer, formerly on the staff of The Columbus Citizen, was working for the Chillicothe paper when he entered the Army on Sept. 24, 1942.

Simultaneously, the paper reported that Col. S. I. Zeidner, depot commanding officer, presented Ammer the citation certificate for the Army Commendation Ribbon Friday afternoon. The former Signal Corps sergeant was cited as performing meritorious services for a three-year period. Signed by Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commanding general of the Fifth Service Command, the citation said that "accomplishing technical duties with distinction, Ammer's services have brought commendation to his organization and this command."

Announcement of the award had been made on Feb. 23, when Ammer was discharged from the Army, but the citation was not available at that time.

Ammer, whose home is in Circleville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses S. Ammer, 141 Pleasant street. He achieved a classification of photographic chief and the top Army efficiency rating of "superior" while serving as photographer for the Depot, largest installation of its kind in the world.

HULSE IS NAMED CROP ADJUSTER FOR PICKAWAY

Fred Hulse, Circleville Route 2, has been appointed crop insurance adjuster by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

It will be Mr. Hulse's duty to adjust all crop insurance losses in Pickaway county.

If wheat is insured under federal all-risk insurance, and it becomes apparent that it may not pay to leave it stand, the grower must notify the county AAA office so that the condition of the crop can be appraised by Mr. Hulse before it is disked or plowed up. If the crop is appraised as a total loss, the insured will be paid at the rate of 50 per cent of the insured production, as the operator saves the cost of harvesting and has the land available for another crop.

Applications for all-risk crop insurance on the 1947, 1948 and 1949 wheat crops can now be made at the county AAA office.

ARMCHAIR SLEUTH

When the circus comes to New York's Madison Square Garden, Con Colleano, acrobat star on the wires, will visit the Ellery Queen show on the eve of the opening performance to sit in the guest armchair detective's chair for "The Adventure of the Death Wish" Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., EST, over CBS. The circus performer will try to guess whodunit in the murder mystery of a man who desires to die, but hasn't the courage to take his own life. It's the story of a human tragedy with Ellery, as an amateur psychologist, attempting to rebuild a broken life. He races against death to save a human being. But the damage goes too far with the tragic victim of circumstances and his own weakness brings his death wish. Who grants it? This is the question the "maestro" will ask his guest sleuth from Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus. Ellery Queen will be helped in his futile effort to save from destruction the man with the will to die, by his pretty secretary, Nikki Porter, as played by Gertrude Warner. Santos Ortega will lend aid as Inspector Richard Queen, father of a brilliant son. Ted de Corsia will be Sergeant Tom Velle.

ASHVILLE

The Knight Rank will be conferred at a banquet meeting of Palmetto Lodge Wednesday with the supper scheduled for 7:00 p. m. Exemplification of the ritual will begin at 8:00. Visiting brothers will be welcome.

Ashville

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Raver, and son Edwin, of Columbus were Sunday guests of Mrs. Dora Baum.

Ashville

Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson visited Sunday with Mrs. Jackson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Haines of Sabina, Ohio.

YEAR ROUND SANTA

A night attendant in the Veterans' Hospital at Waco, Texas, who plays Santa Claus all the year round to the poor kids of that city, receives Morton Downey's "Big Little American" tribute on the popular tenor's broadcast, Wednesday 12:15 p. m. (EST). "Santa Claus" is A. C. McAdams, retired Federal Reserve Bank teller, who devotes all his spare time, 12 months in the year, to repairing broken toys and playthings, without charge, for Waco youngsters who have no money to pay for such service. Mac, as he's known to practically all of Waco, is an important cog in the "toy chest" conducted by Kiwanians of the Texas community, using his nimble fingers to patch up hundreds of battered toys collected throughout the city and distributed to the underprivileged at Christmas time. This work, too, is done voluntarily even though the Kiwanis Club, time and again, has tried to offer McAdams payment for his valuable contribution to the project. Each time he refuses, and the reason, he says, is that he's never forgotten a kindly, grey-haired old man who, years ago when Mac was a youngster, used to gladden the hearts of youngsters in the neighborhood by patching up all their broken playthings and took his payment in happy childhood laughter.

BOB CROSBY

Marilyn Maxwell joins the "pally little rally" Bob Crosby holds Wednesday, at 9:30 p. m. (EST) over the Columbia network. John Lund, Crosby's film find, the Town Criers, and Bobcat orchestra are on the half-hour airshow. Not long ago Marilyn Maxwell was a regular singing date with Bob's brother Bing. Since then she has become one of the film colony's busiest stars. If Bob Crosby and friend John Lund are thanking their lucky stars for such an attractive guest on their musical half-hour, Miss Maxwell will tell them they owe it all to astrology. The blonde and beautiful singer believes astrology has influenced her life.

SPOTLIGHT SHOW

A stellar combination of Latin-American and popular tunes, all done in the distinctive rhumba style of Xavier Cugat and his orchestra, have been selected for the inaugural broadcast of the regular weekly appearances of Cugat and his band on the new "Spotlight Bands" series, Wednesday, (9:30 to 10 p. m., EST) over Mutual. Heading the list of Latin-American tunes are "La Ole Marina," "Linda Mujer," and "Sintim-bale," with "Money Is the Root of All Evil," and "Seems Like Old Times," included among the popular favorites—which will nevertheless, be given the distinctive rhumba treatment for which Cugat and his crew are famous. Two other numbers, Cole Porter's perennially beguiling "Begin the Beguine," and the still-in-demand "Tico-Tico," round out the program to give the "Spotlight" maestro an opportunity to display his best Latin-American style.

AMOS 'N' ANDY SHOW

By means of a bit of snooping, which consists of reading a letter his wife has written to her mother, the Kingfish learns that he is not quite the perfect man, and sets about improving himself. In the Amos 'n' Andy comedy broadcast, Tuesday, at 9 p. m. His attempts to become a social lion lead to complications.

Circleville Township Protests Abandonment Of School District

PETITION FILED WITH BOARD TO BLOCK PROGRAM

80 Per Cent Of Voters Ask District Be Retained In County Setup

Petitions formally protesting abandonment of the Circleville township school district were filed with the Pickaway county board of education and School Superintendent George D. McDowell said Tuesday the petitions have been sent to the State Department of Education at Columbus.

Following a meeting of the county school board on March 6, when action was taken to eliminate the township school district, it was widely reported that residents of the township would file petitions challenging the action.

Superintendent McDowell said that the petitions contained 45 signatures or approximately 80 per cent of the 57 eligible voters in Circleville township.

The filing of the protesting petitions, Superintendent McDowell asserted, automatically halts, temporarily, the abandonment of the township as a school district, and that a final decision in the controversy is expected to be given by the Ohio department of education.

At the March 6 session the members of the county school board, Superintendent McDowell explained, decided that abandonment of Circleville township as a school district was decided as mandatory under a new state law enacted by the General Assembly in 1946 and which became effective February 4, 1946.

Inasmuch as there were no schools in operation in the township outside of the city of Circleville, Superintendent McDowell said, the county school board had no alternative—under provisions of the new Ohio law—than to declare the township no longer a school district.

Because members of the county school board were somewhat dubious about the situation an opinion was sought from the office of the Ohio attorney general. The board then took action in accordance with the legal ruling obtained from that office. The ruling was that the township must be eliminated as a school district.

Inasmuch as children living in the rural sections of the township already are attending Circleville schools, Superintendent McDowell pointed out, the only effect of the elimination is that the township would no longer have its own school board. Under the decree of the county school board the Circleville township board of education, composed of five members, has been dissolved.

Provisions of the state school law compelling elimination of the township as a school district and the dissolution of the school board in any township having no schools in operation are contained in Section 4831 of the law.

HIGH RANKING PUPILS IN TEST ARE ANNOUNCED

22 Students Of County, City Schools Make Good Grades In Exams

Names of 22 Pickaway County high school seniors who attained the highest scores among 72 students who underwent a general scholarship test March 8 in the Circleville High school were announced Monday by County School Supt. George D. McDowell.

Certificates of recognition will be issued to the winners from the Ohio Department of Education at Columbus which computed the scores.

The examination required almost three hours and covered five subjects, history, English, mathematics, science, and reading. Each subject counted 60 points in the total of 300. The test was administered by a county committee composed of Supt. McDowell, chairman; J. Wray Henry, Circleville high school principal; Walter Harris, Ashville school superintendent; and Judson Lanman, Williamsport superintendent.

Names of the 22 students who placed high in the test are: Ann Elizabeth Snider, Circleville; Patrick Lewis LaRue, Walnut Twp.; Evelyn Lorene Lutz, Circleville; Martha Joan Belt, Scioto Twp.; James Richard Lytle, Circleville; Forest Wayne Jones, Walnut; Rita Mae Rhoads, Pickaway.

AMMER GIVEN CITATION FOR ARMY SERVICE

George Ammer, who served as official photographer for the Columbus Army Service Forces Depot during the war, has rejoined the staff of the Chillicothe Gazette, oldest newspaper in the U. S. west of the Alleghenies, the paper has announced. Ammer, formerly on the staff of The Columbus Citizen, was working for the Chillicothe paper when he entered the Army on Sept. 24, 1942. Simultaneously, the paper reported that Col. S. I. Zeidner, depot commanding officer, presented Ammer the citation certificate.
